On Supervisors' Friday agenda

Stennis Field FBO lease questioned

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Cancellation of a lease held by the fixed base operator at Stennis International Airport was considered at a Monday meeting of the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission.

Genin also said the January and February rent fees and a percentage of gross revenues as outlined in the lease agreement have not been paid. In addition to the monies in arrears, Genin said Carson is in violation of minimum standard lease agreements calling for an adequate and efficient ramp service, properly trained personnel on duty or a notice designating how they may be contacted, proper equipment for repair services, flight instruction and aircraft rental.

The commission met with Carson in November and in January regarding minimum standards outlined in the lease which commission members believed were not being met.

In its January meeting with Carson, he reported negotiations with a mechanic were continuing. Carson told the commission student flight instruction had been available for two months, but the instructor had only given one ride which lasted about 30 minutes and did not have the first student.

Although the January meeting with Carson was called to determine if he was fulfilling the minimum standards in the lease, he said the main thing he had to report is that Inovair is "not a long way" from putting together a commuter airline service.

He said this service would be able to handle people between National Space Technology Laboratories and New Orleans Moisant Airport.

Before any action is taken on the lease, the information will be presented to the Hancock County Board of Supervisors at its meeting Friday at the courthouse.

In other business the commission, agreed to pay $2,500 as its portion of

Seven drug-related indictments released

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
The Hancock County Sheriff's Department this week continued to release indictments brought by the January Grand Jury.

Grand Jury indictments are turned over to the sheriff's department by the Circuit Court and remain confidential until those named can be located and arrested.

In addition to a murder indictment against Melbourne E. Joseph Jr., 42, of 209, Palmeth Cove, Pass Christian and two other related indictments released earlier, seven additional indictments dealing with sale or possession of controlled substances and marijuana have been made public.

Joseph was indicted for the murder of his estranged wife, Diana Joseph, who died Dec. 22 a few hours after her car was pushed through an intersection and into a utility pole on Second Street in Bay St. Louis.

Witnesses at the scene reported the tag number of Joseph's car which had left the scene following the incident.

Joseph surrendered himself to the police department and reported he had been involved in an accident a few hours later.

David Scaife, 30, of 103 Beach Drive, Pass Christian has been indicted as an accessory after the fact to murder in the Joseph case.

Scaife is charged with concealing and assisting Joseph, knowing he had committed a homicide, to enable him to escape and avoid arrest, trial and conviction.

Royale Walter Jr., 27, of 446 Thomas St., Bay St. Louis, was indicted for disclosing information on Grand Jury proceedings.

Other indictments and charges include:

Prisoner escape attempt causes highway crash

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Two Florida police officers and two prisoners were involved in a one-vehicle accident late Wednesday.

Mississippi State Trooper Houston Dorr said the two officers from Pensacola were transporting the two prisoners from New Mexico when one jumped the lawmen over the back seat causing the accident.

The accident occurred near the four-mile marker in the east-bound lanes of Interstate 10 in Hancock County.

At the scene of the accident one of the prisoners reportedly tried to steal the vehicle of a motorist who had stopped to offer assistance, Dorr stated.

All four were transported to Hancock Medical Center, three by Mobile Medic Ambulance Service.

The officers' vehicle was on its side after clipping several small pine trees.

Dorr was assisted by Trooper Glenn Grice and Hancock County sheriff's deputies.

At press time the accident was still being investigated with Dorr saying there probably will be some charges filed.

$1 dinners and 5-cent Cokes to launch Waveland Centennial

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Waveland's Centennial Year of celebration will kick-off with an old fashioned dinner on Saturday, Feb. 20, noon until 3 p.m. at the American Legion Hall, Coleman Avenue.

The date for the dinner was finalized at a Tuesday meeting of Mayor John Longo and the Centennial committee which was formed last year.

The dinner of red beans, rice, sausage, and salad, to be prepared by the American Legion will cost $1 for adults and .50 for children, cokes going for .05 and draft beer .25.

Lawrence Freeman of Post 77 is to coordinate the preparation of the dinner.

In late January the mayor and aldermen proclaimed 1988 as "Waveland Centennial Year."

A prelude to the celebration was publicly announced when National American Legion Commander John P. (Jake) Comer of Quincy, Mass. was presented a key to the city by Longo on his visit to Waveland in January.

Many of the men in attendance at Tuesday's meeting such as Legion Commander Danny Carter are in the process of growing beards for the many planned events for the year of celebration.

Ladies of the city are in the process of preparing dresses popular during the 1880's.

Among the many events discussed at the meeting for the 100th anniversary celebration for Waveland are a birthday party, block party, street dance, tree planting, time capsule, parade, kids fishing rodeo, pier dedication, and a founder's day family picnic.

Longo said he would like to see some special event held very month until the big celebration in October which would probably be an all-day affair.

The city's business along with civic organizations will be contacted to participate in the Centennial special events.

Some 25 citizens along with Longo and Alderman Louie Smolensky attended Tuesday's meeting.

United Way goal short, officers elected

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Officers for the United Way of Hancock County were re-elected at Tuesday's meeting held at Coast Electric in Bay St. Louis.

Those elected were, Charles B. Benvenuti, president; Ellis Cuevas, vice-president; Hilda Bourg, treasurer; and May Beyer, secretary.

Conrad L. Mauffray is executive director; Martha L. Van Peski, executive secretary; and Rev. Charles Clark serves as chaplain.

Directors for the United Way of Hancock County are, Lonnie Clayborn, Rick Eagan, Clarice Gustin, Michael D. Haas, Sr., Patricia Mauffray Harvill, Bob Hubbard, John Mason and Roger Oge. Clayborn was the 1987 campaign chairman with Bob Breeden, Rosary Ehle, David Treutel Jr., Kathy Fernandez and Lou Hall as co-chairmen.

Mauffray said donations and pledges for the 1987 drive were not complete as yet, but it looks as if the goal of $65,000 may be about $4,000 short.

Benvenuti emphasized the need for Hancock Countians to make a "Fair Share" contribution to the local United Way.

"We really appreciate the contributions made by everyone, yet there is a need for more participation by local residents," Benvenuti added.

Nationwide a "Fair Share" is considered one hour's pay each month of the year.

Some 18 agencies are supported by the United Way of Hancock County.

Those wishing to send a contribution to the United Way can send it to P.O. Box 142, Bay St. Louis, Miss. 39520.

Democratic Party platform hearing slated Saturday

The chairman of the State Democratic Party, Ed Cole, reports a public platform hearing will be held Saturday, Feb. 13 at 10 a.m. at Jeff Davis Jr. College in Gulfport in Room D110 of the Fine Arts Building, Switzer Road.

The hearing will be conducted by the three committee members from the Fifth Congressional District, Senator Stephen Hale of Pascagoula; Mrs. Sharon Hayes of Waynesboro; and Rep. Diane Peranich of Pass Christian.

Purpose of the hearing will be to obtain information from the public before formulating the Democratic Party Platform to be presented to the State Convention on March 26 for ratification.

The platform serves two purposes:

(1) To present a concrete statement delineating the priorities of the Mississippi Democratic Party for the next four years and

(2) To provide material which the two permanent members of the Standing Platform Committee of the 1988 Democratic National Convention can use as input in the development of the National Party Platform.

The guidelines for the hearing will permit an oral presentation by anyone for a length of 2-5 minutes maximum and/or submission of a typed-written presentation of no more than 10 pages double-spaced.

There will be a state-wide platform hearing in Jackson on Feb. 20 at 10 a.m. in the Hinds County Courthouse temporary jury assembly room to ensure a public forum for those who cannot participate on Feb. 13.

The public is encouraged to attend and take part in this democratic process, Cole said.

Items recovered, juveniles arrested in burglary

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Two Hancock County juveniles were arrested Tuesday in connection with the burglary of a Silver Creek Acres residence.

Hancock County Sheriff's Investigator Nathan Hoda said the juveniles were arrested late Tuesday night following the early morning burglary of the W. Warren residence.

Items taken in the burglary and recovered include 11 handguns, one shotgun and 1,500 rounds of ammunition, Hoda said.

He also said the juveniles vandalized another house in the subdivision owned by Glen Hotard.

Hoda was assisted by Bobby Necaie, Deron Cuevas and Barry Hoda.

The juveniles were turned over to Hancock County Youth Court authorities.

ILLEGAL BEER SALE

In an unrelated incident, three persons have been arrested for sale of beer to a minor and another person is being sought.

Schmitz arrested on burglary charge

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Todd F. Schmitz, 27, of Pearlinton, was arrested early Wednesday morning in connection with burglary of a residence.

Bay Police Detective David Murtagh said at first a complaint had been received of kidnapping.

Jerry Jacques of Bayou Jacques Lounge located on Railroad Avenue in Bay St. Louis had reported

Schmitz had forcefully pushed the door of his upstairs apartment open, breaking the chain lock and had forced a girl to leave with him.

When Schmitz's residence was located in Pearlinton, the Hancock County Sheriff's Department was contacted and Jacques signed a burglary affidavit against Schmitz.

At this point authorities proceeded to his residence in Pearlinton.

After a couple of hours Schmitz was found at his residence with Maria Wukawitz, who denied she had been kidnapped.

Schmitz was charged with burglary, breaking and entering with the intent to commit a crime.

He is currently being held in the Hancock Jail under a $5,000 bond.

FmHA suspends most sales and new leases of inventory property

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farmers Home Administration has temporarily suspended the sale and new leasing of most property that is in the agency's inventory, according to Mississippi FmHA State Director John H. Arthur.

"The Agricultural Credit Act passed last month requires the agency to review all the farm property we administer and to assure that where possible it is sold or leased back to the previous owner or to a family size farmer who qualifies for an FmHA loan," Arthur said.

"In order to assure that we abide by both the spirit and the letter of the law," he said "we need to stop where we are and analyze the situation. For instance, some very large parcels of land may have to be broken into smaller, family size farms.

Current leases can be renewed

Summer food service

vendors must register

by March 15

Food service management companies which plan to act as vendors for USDA's 1988 summer food service program for children in Mississippi must register with the State Department of Education on or before March 15.

The summer food service program provides nutritious meals to children 18 years of age and under, from areas of economic need at qualified public or private nonprofit, nonresidential institutions or residential camps during the summer months.

Regulations require that companies providing food service for the summer food program must be registered, reputable and able to meet the terms of their contracts. In addition, under USDA's rules, food service management companies must provide states, at the time of registration, with detailed information on their operation of the past two years.

Companies wanting information on the summer food service program or applications for registration in Mississippi should contact Clarence Lovelady, Director Mississippi Department of Education, Division of Child Nutrition, P.O. Box 771, Jackson, MS 39202 (601) 352-8490.

and remain in effect for the rest of the calendar year. But no new leases will be made on inventory property that is not now being leased.

Inventory sales will continue to be made when the buyer is the former owner of the property. "Sales and leases to other family size farmers will resume after the review is complete," Arthur said.

There were many who braved the cold weather last Sunday to view the annual Krewe of Nereids parade in Waveland.

The cold, in addition to a drizzle, did not keep to spirits down of the viewers or float riders.

Thanks to the Krewes of Nereids, Eros and Hancock for giving the spectators a very good parade.

I am personally hoping weather conditions will be better on Saturday for the Krewe of Diamondhead's annual Mardi Gras parade.

I am excited about being selected as the Grand Marshall for the Diamondhead Land Parade as it is a once-in-a-lifetime honor.

The Diamondhead parade is scheduled to begin at noon on Saturday and meet the Diamondhead Sea Parade at the Yacht Club.

I hope to see many of my friends along the parade route.

Don't forget the Krewe of Kids parade in Cedar Point, Bay St. Louis on Saturday. The youngsters always seem to enjoy themselves as they move about on wagons, bicycles, etc.

Sunday will mark the annual Pass Christian Mardi Gras parade which begins at 2 p.m. The parade usually has the most floats of any along the Coast.

On Tuesday at 1 p.m. the Krewe of Real People will be marching through the streets of Bay St. Louis.

The Mardi Gras Day parade's theme is 'All That Jazz' and is expected to be the largest ever for the organization.

We hope to see you at all the parades.

In recent weeks our Hancock County Board of Supervisors has been attending as individuals many of the various governmental meetings as observers.

Just this past week three of our supervisors were in attendance at a Regional Waste Water meeting. It is good to see the interest and concern of our newly elected county officials.

The residents of Waveland are gearing up for many celebrations in the coming months.

The year of 1988 marks the Centennial for Waveland which has really shown growth in recent years.

At a meeting on Tuesday night some dozen or so events were discussed, so it should be fun time for all of Waveland's citizens along with their neighbors.

The first big event will be a Red Beans and Rice and Smoked Sausage dinner on Saturday, Feb. 20 for only $1. Remember that will be the Saturday after Mardi Gras Day.

Governor's Weekly Report

BY GOV. RAY MABUS

It is a privilege and a pleasure to be able to write to you each week about our state. I hope to outline my hopes and goals for Mississippi, and how I believe we can achieve them.

I have long said that government in Mississippi just doesn't work well enough. Now, as governor, I want this to be the "Year of Making Government Work Better."

I think a good place to begin is with the state budget.

In the past, we have simply not set priorities for spending your tax dollars. Instead of taking what money we have and putting it where it will do the most good, we have spread it thin among hundreds of programs.

As a result, we've ended up with a lot of mediocre programs and not enough excellent ones.

That's not a good way to operate and we need to change it.

I want to put $198 million—much of the new money we will have next year—into one area: Education. That money will allow us to raise teacher salaries in Mississippi from the lowest in the nation to about 34th, and from the bottom of the 12-state southeastern region to sixth.

This will send a clear message to the rest of the country that Mississippi is serious about educating our children.

Why is this important? First, well educated children ultimately become better paid adults when they enter the workforce. Moreover, the quality of a state's public education

By Bill Minor

JACKSON—There's hope that the 1988 Mississippi Legislature will reform the state workers' compensation law and at last raise the maximum weekly benefits for injured workers which even longtime foes now admit are disgraceful.

Some 15,000 to 20,000 Mississippi workers who annually lose time from their jobs due to injury or illness connected with their employment must depend upon benefits from the compensation law while off work.

For years industry and organized labor lobbyists have been at loggerheads over changes in the 1948 law which is designed to assure compensation for injured workers without having to prove who was at fault.

Meantime, weekly benefits for injured workers in Mississippi have remained far below the rest of the nation.

Finally there seems to be a breakthrough in the legislative deadlock as a result of a 1987 bill sponsored by Rep. Bruce Hanson of Columbus which created a state advisory council on workers' compensation under the aegis of the Mississippi Workers' Compensation Commission.

The council included representatives of the traditional opposing forces—management, labor, defense lawyers, plaintiff lawyers, insurance carriers, medical providers and economic developers—as well as two legislators.

A package of four compromise bills to revamp the compensation schedule and make some other significant revisions in the 40-year-old law, have been introduced by Hanson. He was a member of the council and has been a prime mover the past several years in reforming the workers' comp system.

The key bill would index the maximum weekly benefits at two-thirds of the state's average weekly wage as determined each year by the state Employment Security Commission, rather than depending on the Legislature to peg it at a specific amount.

Mississippi's weekly maximum compensation benefit now is $140 compared with $319 in Alabama. Arkansas, which in 1987 was the next lowest state, had a maximum of $189.

Based on the present average weekly wage of $310 in Mississippi, the indexing measure would raise the maximum weekly benefit to a little over $200 a week.

"From where Mississippi has been, this would be a quantum leap forward for us," Hanson declared. "But it's long overdue, and I believe it will have broad support in the Legislature."

Marshall Lusk, chairman of the state Workers' Compensation Commission said that the consensus on the advisory council, even among those representing industrial employers, "was that our maximum benefits have been shamefully low." Agreement on indexing benefits, which has long been an objective of the Mississippi AFL-CIO, Lusk said, "was the springboard that brought several other things together within the council."

As a second part of the indexing measure, the bill would redefine what constitutes an injury, to more clearly define stress-related injuries.

This point, said Lusk, was pushed by the management representatives on the council. "From their viewpoint, it tightens up the definition of an injury," he said, "and the representatives of labor and the trial lawyers agreed to accept it."

Other bills in the package include an entitlement of injured workers to approximately $5,000 in rehabilitation services from a provider of their own choice to enhance their return to work; a self-insurers guaranty fund administered by the Workers' Compensation Commission to protect workers' claims in the event of insolvency of an employer's self-insured plan; and a measure aimed at cost containment of medical fees.

"I would say this package represents the greatest step forward since the workers' compensation law was originally passed in 1948," Hanson said last week. "It's fortunate that we finally found a point where everybody could agree."

Hanson's role on the advisory council was apparently more vital to its success than just being one of 25 members.

"Bruce was the cheerleader... the catalyst in bringing it all together," said Lusk.

Spring means free enterprise games

The hints of spring that have begun to fill the air can only mean one thing, it's time for the third annual Free Enterprise Games.

The Free Enterprise Games, designed to increase the interest of high school students in our economic system, are sponsored by the American Enterprise Center, the economic education arm of the Mississippi Economic Council, and Chevron USA.

The regional champion for South Mississippi will be determined Feb. 23 in Hattiesburg, while the North Mississippi regional competition is to be held March 1 at Mississippi State University.

Once the regional representatives have been decided, the two teams will meet in head-to-head competition in April.

For the first time in the three years of competition, cash prizes of $100 are to be awarded to the two regional winners, with the overall winner to receive an additional $200 in cash prizes.

Peggy Howard, director of the American Enterprise Center and MEC vice president for programs, said the teams will be made up of five students, seniors and juniors, a teacher, and a business advisor from the community. Those interested in participating should contact Howard at MEC, P.O. Box 1849, Jackson, MS 39215-1849, or phone (601) 660-0022.

Even though there will be only one team to emerge as the winner of the Free Enterprise Games, all those who participate will emerge victorious having gained a better understanding of the free enterprise system.

The MEC and Chevron USA realize the importance of promoting free enterprise in Mississippi's schools. The Free Enterprise Games expose students to the principles of free enterprise and allow them to test their knowledge of these principles on a statewide basis.

News from the Capitol City

By Ellen Ann Fentress
Mississippi

The Mississippi Senate last week moved toward a floor vote to consider a new state constitution, as the 1988 session of the Mississippi Legislature entered its second month.

No major floor votes took place last week. Instead, a Senate committee's decision on legislation that could lead to replacing the state constitution took top billing.

Another major event of the week was the introduction of Gov. Ray Mabus' teacher pay raise plan by key House leaders.

Also last week, foes and proponents of legalizing off-shore gambling on the Mississippi Gulf Coast exchanged fire, and lawmakers voted to increase the maximum benefit for unemployment compensation.

The Senate is expected to vote at mid-week on a bill that could lead to replacing the state's 98-year-old constitution, following the Senate Constitution Committee's passage of the bill.

However, the Senate panel made radical alterations on the House-passed legislation before sending out for the coming floor vote. The House version of the bill, which passed 83-37 in January, calls for a Nov. 8 statewide referendum on whether to call a constitutional convention in July 1989.

But the Senate panel decided to reword the November question to ask if voters wanted a convention or changes through individual amendments, an alteration suggested by Sen. Bunky Huggins of Greenwood.

The constitution panel also revived a Mabus-backed provision of the bill stripped out by the House, authorizing the governor to appoint an extra 20 delegates, which would include blacks and women, to the convention in addition to the 122 delegates to be elected from across the state.

Other requirements attached to the Senate bill by committee members were mandating that a new constitution require the state to balance its budget, protect funds in the Public Employee Retirement System and keep the right-to-work section untouched. The right-to-work provision forbids mandatory union membership.

Some senators opposed setting any subjects as off-limits in a convention. The 5-4 committee vote to protect the state employees' retirement was considered a test vote on whether the committee would leash the convention to ensure that some sections would be left untrampled.

In the House, four committee leaders went on record as sponsors of legislation to enact Mabus' top 1987 campaign promise: raising teacher salaries to the Southeastern average. Introducing the bill were Reps. Jim Simpson of Long Beach, Ashley Hines of Greenville, Charlie Capps of Cleveland and Rick Fortenberry of Meridian. Simpson and Hines are chairman and vice chairman of the House Education Committee. Capps and Fortenberry are chairman and vice chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

A number of other House members later signed up to co-sponsor the bill.

The legislation, however, only deals with the salary increase, which averages $3,700 per teacher. Separate bills would be needed to earmark where to find the estimated $114 million necessary for the teacher raises.

Hearings on the pay raise bill could take place in the House Education Committee this week.

Several of the sponsors conceded that they had not ruled out the possibility of the raise package making a tax increase necessary. Mabus insists that the raises can be funded by cuts in the budget, one-time revenue sources and tax collections that may be higher than originally expected.

However, Capps predicted that the appropriations panel could modify Mabus' plan, either phasing the raise in or tying the salary to those in surrounding states.

Unemployment benefits may edge up, since both chambers have agreed to increase the maximum weekly benefit for unemployment compensation. The present maximum is $130 weekly. The Senate supports increasing the maximum to $140 weekly, while the House favors pushing the ceiling higher to $150. The average benefit would increase from about $99 to $103 weekly.

House

HB 449. The House voted 111-9 to increase the maximum weekly unemployment compensation from $130 to $150. Compretta, yes.

The President's Column

By Ronald Reagan

I recently journeyed to North Carolina to participate in a symposium examining one of our country's most serious challenges: the use of illicit drugs. In North Carolina we talked about drug use in the workplace, a problem that, it is estimated, costs our society nearly $100 billion in lost productivity each year and poses a grave threat to our public health and safety.

And public safety is an issue. There was a train wreck in Maryland a little over a year ago when the crew went through signals that told them to stop. Sixteen people were killed, including two young sisters. Those young victims will never know the joys of life, of marriage, of having their own families. Why did that tragedy occur? The National Transportation Safety Board determined that the engineer ran the stop signals because he was impaired by marijuana.

The time to act has long since passed. The tragedy and heartbreak brought to families throughout our country have already gone too far. Each of us can help by making a personal commitment to be absolutely intolerant of the use of illegal drugs. As Nancy says, "Either you take an active hostile position or you are giving tacit approval."

The next step is to identify the users—not to put them in jail, but to do what we can to get them off drugs and to help them to live a drug-free life. Drug testing not only permits us to identify users, but it has been shown to be a deterrent as well. In fact, a no-drug policy in the military, which includes screening and testing, has resulted in a two-thirds decline in the number of drug users in uniform.

This same commitment could well save money and lives in the private sector. And we are determined that the Federal Government, the nation's number one employer, lead the way in eliminating the use of illegal drugs in the workplace.

But this challenge is not the government's alone. It belongs to all of us. Those using drugs are affecting our lives and hurting others. Whether they want to admit it or not. When policemen, judges, mayors, and military officers are gunned down by drug traffickers in countries like Colombia, anyone using drugs in the United States is helping pull the trigger of a murderer's gun.

And the death toll also includes those shop owners and police killed during drug-related incidents in our own country. No decent person could want to contribute to such vicious crime, yet everyone who uses illegal drugs, even occasionally, shares the blame.

But it is never too late to quit, and it is never too late to take a stand. I have always believed that, once we have made up our minds, there is nothing we Americans cannot accomplish. Making up our minds is the hard part. Recently, we saw Congress divided on my request for continued assistance to those fighting for freedom in Nicaragua.

Both sides claim their goal to be peace and democracy in Central America; the argument is over how to achieve it. To my disappointment, the House of Representatives voted to remove military pressure from the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua. The Senate agreed with me that we cannot leave Democratic Resistance in that country to the mercy of that Communist regime and expect the Sandinistas to democratize out of the goodness of their hearts.

All of this has serious implications for our country's national security and, no less important, has grave implications for those brave souls who are fighting for democracy in Nicaragua—people who trusted us. Their fate, the fate of democracy, and our own security interests depend on the next steps we take.

I understand that some in Congress have already begun to develop an alternative assistance package. I await the details. I will work with the members of both parties to see to

State Narcotics Bureau director appointed

JACKSON—James R. Jim Wallace, 41, of Jackson has been appointed director of the Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics (MBN).

Interim Commissioner of Public Safety Louisa Dixon, in announcing the appointment, said Wallace brings expertise, sensitivity and balance to the position.

"Drug abuse is an insidious disease that is eating our children alive," Dixon said.

"I consider Jim Wallace to be the best qualified person to assist in leading a cooperative effort between MBN, the Highway Patrol and municipal, county and federal drug law enforcement agencies to stop drug trafficking in Mississippi," she said.

Wallace's appointment to director, which is effective immediately, will be submitted to the state Senate for confirmation. He has served as interim director since Jan. 12 and is the first director to be selected from within the agency.

"Jim knows the needs of the citizens and law enforcement community in Mississippi because he became an agent shortly after MBN began operation. He has worked for 16 years to curb the influx of illegal drugs into this state and is acutely aware of the growing need for jointly sponsored narcotics law enforcement programs," she said.

"The new director has been a stabilizing force at MBN. He is qualified through formal education and has continued to upgrade his skills through extensive training by state and federal agencies.

"He brings integrity, honesty and fairness to this important position," Dixon added.

Wallace said that MBN will be working with organizations and associations in Mississippi to effect a reduction in the demand for drugs. "There is not one aspect of today's society that is not affected by illegal drugs. One of our goals will be to work with civic and youth groups to reduce the demand for illegal narcotics in this state," Wallace said.

A native of Jackson, Wallace was graduated from Hinds Junior College and earned a bachelor's degree in psychology and history from Mississippi College. He has studied in the criminal justice master's program at the University of Mississippi.

In addition to being a graduate of the University of Louisville's (Ky.)

Southern Police Institute, Wallace has completed more than 30 drug interdiction, photography, computer, radio communication, investigative analysis, and other law enforcement courses at training facilities in California, Tennessee, Washington, D.C., Maryland, Ohio, Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, Virginia, Florida and New Mexico.

He currently serves as president of the Public Safety Officers Amateur Radio Association and vice president of the Law Enforcement Data General Users Group.

Prior to being hired as an agent at MBN, Wallace graduated in the top five percent of his class at the United States Army Military Police School system is among the most important factors businesses consider before coming to a state.

"The importance of education to business investment was hammered home in a recent survey by a business study group called the Conference Board. In that survey of 130 of America's largest companies, 64 percent said education was the most important factor they consider when coming to a state.

"To put it simply, investment in education means more and better paying jobs for our people.

"My budget calls for fully funding education without a tax increase. I truly believe this can be done.

"Mississippi's budget and economic experts agree that state government will have much more growth in revenue next year than originally expected. I have suggested that much of that money go into education.

"Also, I have recommended that we use some unspent, surplus funds that have built up over the years. That money can be used now for education and other vital programs.

"Finally, I have proposed that a budget amount of two-lane road maintenance and construction be delayed next year by bonds. Not one mile of road work would be delayed or trapped, but my budget would free up more than $30 million for immediate needs such as a teacher pay increase.

"There are those who would proceed more slowly with investment in education. But I say now is the time to move ahead in a bold fashion.

It was once said, "No one can make you feel inferior without your consent."

Well, I refuse to accept any notion of an inferior educational system in Mississippi. We have the capacity, financially, and in brainpower, to make education in Mississippi first rate, bar none. I think my proposed budget is an essential step in that direction.

I have pledged to work closely with the legislature. I also would like your help in passing this budget. If this is to be the "Year of Making Government Work Better," you, the voters, must contact my office and legislators to make your views known.

it that the fact that we disagree does not mean that America cannot act. What I will not accept, however, is an assistance package that is little more than a disguise for surrender and abandonment.

The Sandinistas made commitments to democracy and pluralism as long ago as 1979. They were not kept. Americans are united in our determination that these latest promises be kept in a timely way. We must act to ensure that freedom is not smothered in that country.

We live in perilous times, my fellow Americans, but also times of great hope and opportunity. The future is up to us.

Federation reports small business survey results

JACKSON—Mississippi's largest small-business organization announces results of its latest annual member survey, used to determine its legislative agenda. The survey, conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business/Mississippi, polled more than 4,600 members on mandated health insurance coverage, bad-check restitution and liability insurance and tort reforms.

Nine out of ten members polled oppose mandated health insurance for full-time employees. "We've found that many small businesses already offer some form of health insurance for their employees. And those that don't, say the insurance is either too expensive, or they have too few employees to qualify for a group health plan," said Clay Cooley, director of governmental relations for NFIB/Mississippi.

"Mandating benefits would cause the loss of many jobs and severely depress the creation of new jobs," Cooley said. "Many small-business owners would be forced to lay off workers and curtail hiring new ones in the future to avoid this new cost." Concerning another survey question, an overwhelming 87 percent of those members polled favor stiffer penalties for bad-check writers. "Bad checks are becoming a bigger problem every year," Cooley said. "This bill offers some needed relief," he added. Proposed legislation calls for the bad-check writer to pay three times the amount of the check or $100, whichever is greater.

On another survey question, small-business owners favor by 74 percent allowing Mississippi voters a chance to vote on a constitutional amendment that would permit a state lottery. The proposed lottery has been suggested as a way of funding public education.

The survey also includes questions on liability insurance and tort reforms. Seventy-eight percent of those polled favor giving judges the same power granted under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. If adopted, judges could either award attorneys' fees or take sanctions against a party who files a frivolous lawsuit.

The 1987 NFIB state ballot results called for sweeping liability insurance and tort reforms. Five liability insurance proposals that would have helped small-business owners with insurance availability and costs were killed in the House. "Consequently, small-business owners are still looking for remedies," Cooley said. Specifically, ly, business owners advocate joint and several liability limitations, barring out-of-state lawsuits that try to take advantage of Mississippi's liberal statute of limitations, changing the statute of limitations from six years to three years and limiting damages in some medical malpractice suits.

Vets Jobs Training Act extended

Veterans now have until June 30, 1988, to apply for a certificate of eligibility for the Veterans' Jobs Training Act Program (VJTA).

According to VA Regional Office Director Jeff R. Ryker, the application date for the VJTA program has been extended from December 31, 1987, until June 30, 1988, for eligible veterans.

In order to be eligible for the program, a veteran must have been discharged from active military service under conditions other than dishonorable and have served continuously more than 180 days, any part of which occurred during the Korean conflict (June 27, 1950, through Jan. 31, 1955) or Vietnam era (Aug. 5, 1964, through May 7, 1975).

Length of service is waived if a veteran is discharged for a service-connected disability or is entitled to receive service-connected compensation.

Additionally, the veteran must have been unemployed 10 of the 15 weeks immediately preceding the date of his/her application.

The VJTA program provides up to $10,000 to qualified employers to hire, train, and subsequently employ qualified veterans.

Training periods are 3 to 9 months for a veteran without service-connected disabilities, and 3 to 15 months for service disabled veterans.

Additional information concerning the Veterans' Jobs Training Act Program may be obtained by contacting Hancock Veterans Service officer Sandra Garber at 467-2100 or the Jackson VA Regional Office between the hours of 7:30 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

County Agent's Notes

By Lee Taylor

ARBOR DAY

I'm in a tree-planting mood: how about you?

No. I'm not saying we should all be tree farmers (I'll leave any statements concerning tree farmers up to our county forester). The reasons I'm thinking of trees are Arbor Day coming up this Friday (Feb. 12) and Tree Planting Week, Feb. 12-18. Both are traditions in Hancock County.

We celebrate Arbor Day by planting memorial trees around schools, homes, streets, highways and public buildings. By doing this, we remind ourselves in Hancock County of the importance of trees. Let's pause a minute for a little history lesson.

Arbor day was first celebrated in Nebraska in 1872, the plan and the name originated by Sterling Morton, who later became U.S. Secretary of Agriculture. As Arbor Day outgrew Nebraska and spread to other states, school children became a big part of the celebration.

In 1926, the Mississippi Legislature directed state and county school boards to set aside a special day each year for public schools to plant trees on their grounds. On Arbor Day, many tree planting committees send representatives to schools to distribute free seedlings and demonstrate proper tree planting.

The county tree planting committee also makes the seedlings available to the general public in honor of Tree Planting Week. This celebration provides us with an excellent opportunity to involve 4-H and other Hancock County youth in tree planting projects. For more information, come by the county Extension office.

PEACH LEAF CURL
Mississippi is anxious for a peach crop harvest after two years of disappointing yields. To increase chances of obtaining that bountiful crop, one area that will need your attention is disease control. While diseases are caused by microscopic organisms that cannot be seen, the effects on yield and fruit quality can be easily seen.

Peach leaf curl is caused by a fungus that winters on trees and infects young leaves, shoots and fruit as they emerge in the spring. Infected leaves are recognized by their reddish to purplish color and thickened appearance. They are also curled and puckered.

I talked with Dr. Frank Killebrew, plant pathologist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. He told me that peach leaf curl is important to control because infected leaves aren't very efficient in making food for the developing plant.

He said this disease is easily controlled with a single dormant fungicide application, provided the application is made before the buds swell later this season.

Fungicides you can use include liquid lime-sulfur at a concentration of two cups per gallon of water or ferbam (76 percent wettable powder) at a concentration of 2 and 2/3 tablespoons per gallon of water. The lime-sulfur should not be mixed with oil nor should it be applied too late in the season or when freezing temperatures are expected to within four hours.

Pancakes speak a universal language at table, from the paper thin, delicate French crepes to the Russian blinis; from the tortillas of Mexico to the Chinese egg rolls, the hearty country pancakes or flapjacks to the extra thick and hearty Wicklow pancakes of Ireland.

And with the merry madness of the Carnival season drawing to its close on Mardi Gras—"Fat Tuesday" or "Shrove Tuesday"—it's time to think about getting ready!

It's an age-old tradition in many places to serve pancakes on Shrove Tuesday—to use up the last of the eggs, milk and butter forbidden during Lent in past centuries. Although eggs and milk and butter are allowed in our times, and Lenten regulations have been relaxed to a great extent, it's still traditional to serve pancakes on Mardi Gras—Shrove Tuesday.

When I was very young, I remember we youngsters used to gorge ourselves on pancakes at supper after the parades and all the fun of Mardi Gras, while my parents were getting ready for the balls of Rex and Comus and the late suppers and all that—and even as I grew older, I still relished my pancakes—or Crepes, as they are known in French cuisine, for good luck on that day of days.

We children, at the expressed command of Mary, the family cook, would hold a coin in the left hand, to ensure good fortune all year, while flipping our pancakes, one at a time, of course.

And, if we were not too expert—no matter, for Mary called the first pancake the "cat's pancake" as it usually wasn't as well turned out as the following ones. And every cat I've ever had, liked pancakes.

The secret of the success of Mary's pancakes all the time was, and is, so easy—simply add the melted butter or oil right into the batter at the beginning; this way, the pancakes won't stick, except, of course, for the cat's pancake. So, here's the way I do:

BY KATY MC GUIRE CAIRE

BASIC CREPES OR PANCAKES

- 1 cup sifted flour
- 1 1/2 to 2 cups milk (see note)
- 3 eggs
- Pinch salt
- 4 Tblsp. melted butter

I still follow the old-fashioned way: place the cup of flour in a large bowl and make a well or hole in the center. Into this put the eggs, whole, a pinch of salt and, say, a half cup of milk, and starting from the center, beat well until all the flour is absorbed and the batter is smooth. Thin it down with enough more milk to give the consistency of light cream.

(Note: I often use club soda in my pancakes—incredibly light pancakes.)

At this point, if possible, let the batter rest for a couple of hours, so that the flour will swell. If the batter is too thick, add a splash of milk, and, if you stir the batter each time, just a bit, before pouring into the pan, you'll not have to grease the pan at all. If the cakes stick toward the end, flip the bottom of the pan with a few drops of oil or a bit of butter.

If you have any pancakes left over, stack them with waxed paper in between, and refrigerate for a day or freeze, foil wrapped, and reheat when ready in a 375 degree oven for half an hour or less.

You can eat them plain, with sugar or syrup, fill them with sweet or seasoned fillings—whatever you do, enjoy.

P.S. You may, of course, use a mix—but they won't taste as good as mine!

Mississippi business leaders confer in Washington, D.C.

A group of Mississippi's business leaders has just attended the Mississippi Economic Council's 1988 Washington Conference, where they met with federal officials to discuss issues concerning businesses in Mississippi.

The group, led by Jackson lawyer Kenneth Milam, chairman of MEC, met with Mississippi's congressional delegation to review a number of legislative proposals affecting Mississippi's businesses.

Concerns over the federal budget led the list of priorities with discussions centering around plans for a balanced budget and a deficit reduction mechanism.

The group also expressed opposition to proposals presently before the House and Senate to increase the federal minimum wage which, if implemented, would price young people and unskilled laborers out of the entry-level job market.

An addition to proposals requiring employers to provide health care to all employees and to provide 60 days' advance notice of plant closings, the group also reviewed legislation affecting the protection of "right to work" laws in the construction industry and "parental leave."

The business leaders also met with officials from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce where they explored topics ranging from the budget and taxation to the chamber's forecast on the upcoming elections.

Bob Pittman, president of MEC, declared the trip a success, describing it as "one of the most productive we've ever had."

"It is very important that we maintain constant communication with Washington and monitor the progress of certain issues. Presently there are a number of items being debated that directly affect business in Mississippi," he said.

Trees are conservation choice

By Patti Drapala
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Landowners who have taken erodible cropland out of their farming operations can still make money by selecting a highly valuable land cover—trees.

Under the provisions of the Conservation Reserve program, landowners who stop farming highly erodible cropland cannot use the land for commercial harvesting—even cattle grazing and hay making are disallowed. They can plant the land to trees or grass cover, or turn the land into a habitat for wildlife.

If the landowner plants grasses, he won't get any value for it," said Andy Ezell, area forester with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. "If he plants trees, he'll be growing a crop that will be incredibly valuable one day."

Ezell said trees are the best choice if landowners want to increase land value and minimize maintenance expenses.

"More than 450,000 acres of highly erodible cropland in Mississippi have been placed in the Conservation Reserve Program. Landowners who put such land in conservation reserve receive payments of up to $45 per acre from the U.S. government in exchange for nonproduction.

Of the acreage put into the program in Mississippi, 242,000 are in trees. More than one million acres of erodible cropland in the state have not been put in the program, and landowners with this acreage can sign up for the program between Feb. 1 and Feb. 19.

"Trees require no maintenance," Ezell said. "If grass cover is planted, for example, or the land is used for wildlife habitat, then the landowner must maintain it at his own expense."

WDSU-TV introduces new format on 5 p.m. weekday news

NEW ORLEANS—A new generation of reportage, contrasting with the standard news program customarily offered in the 5 p.m. timeslot, premiered Monday, Feb. 8, at 5 p.m. on WDSU 6, the NBC affiliate in New Orleans: 5 O'Clock New Orleans.

"We were looking for the new generation of local news and information programming—a program that would meet the viewers' desire to know more about what is going on in New Orleans, in their neighborhoods. We want to provide people with insights as to why something happens, and what part they play in it," says Mary McCarthy, news director at WDSU 6.

The result, 5 O'Clock New Orleans, touches all bases, concentrating on information viewers will find of importance personally.

Terry Wood and Beverly Carr, lead anchors for the station's 10 p.m. 6 News Tonight, were chosen to anchor the half-hour free-wheeling program. With Wood and Carr are featured reporters Leslie Carde, who provides health information; Stephanie King, who pulls together a brand new service called "Coping;" Vince Marinello, who includes fitness in his sports reports, and WDSU 6 meteorologist Dan Milham. Each program centers on its own "Cover Story," with additional reports filling in details.

Topics for "Cover Story" range from such things as a forecast of the new state administration and what the change-over means on the local level, to the problems facing working parents.

"We began by studying what people have wanted to know about, what they thought they needed to know, and how they use the television news service," notes McCarthy.

"We found out that a lot of people watch several news shows, and wanted something beyond the traditional headlines-and-sports which stations have offered at 5 p.m. We decided to provide that "something beyond," information people can use."

"Keeping in touch through television doesn't necessarily just mean knowing about a traffic accident, a fire, the information of the day," she continues. "We're providing up-to-date information that will matter a week, a month, or even a year from now."

5 O'Clock New Orleans offers headlines to keep viewers informed on the news of the day. And then goes beyond to include the "why" and "so what" aspects.

"It's a tremendous job to sift through the news and key in not only on what's important today, but also on what will continue to be important to our viewers over time. We're excited to provide this new service to the community."

ETV Brief

ALBERTA HUNTER

Alberta Hunter considered herself "lousy" when she started singing in her early teens. She ran away from home to Chicago because she heard a girl could make six dollars a week singing there.

She never dreamed she was on track toward international fame as a cabaret singer and recording artist. Through interviews, rare film footage and still photographs, ETV relives her 70-year career in "Alberta Hunter: My Castle's Rockin'" at 10 p.m., Monday, Feb. 15.

Hunter performed with such greats as Louis Armstrong and King Oliver, helping to shape an entirely new form of American music—jazz. But, from her earliest days, until her comeback at age 82, Hunter never considered herself a jazz—or blues—singer. She preferred to think of herself as a "singer of songs."

beginning any development activities which make any change in improved or unimproved real estate. Building codes issued by the City of Bay St. Louis shall satisfy this permit requirement when issued according to this chapter.

SECTION 9 1/2-1 GENERAL STANDARDS

The following provisions shall apply in all areas of special flood hazard.

a. New construction and substantial improvements shall be anchored to prevent flotation, collapse or lateral movement of the structure.

b. Manufactured homes shall be anchored to prevent flotation, collapse, or lateral movement.

c. New construction and substantial improvements shall be constructed with materials and utility equipment resistant to flood damage.

d. Electrical, heating, ventilation, plumbing, air conditioning equipment and other service facilities shall be designed and/or located to prevent flood waters from entering or accumulating within the components.

e. On-site waste disposal systems shall be designed and constructed to avoid impairment to them during flooding.

f. Any alteration, repair, reconstruction or improvements to a structure which is in compliance with the provisions of this chapter shall be designed to meet the "new construction" as contained in this chapter.

SECTION 9 1/2-2 SPECIFIC STANDARDS

The following is required in all areas of special flood hazard where base flood elevation data have been provided by the FIRM, both in "A" and "V" zones:

a. Residential Construction. New construction or substantial improvement of a building shall be elevated to or above the base flood elevation.

b. Non-Residential Construction. New construction or substantial improvement of a building shall be elevated to or above the base flood elevation.

c. Elevation of buildings with full enclosed areas formed by foundation and other exterior walls shall be designed to preclude finished living space below the base flood elevation and designed for passage of floodwaters to equalize hydrostatic flood forces on exterior walls automatically.

d. Designs for complying with this requirement must meet the following minimum criteria:

1. Provide a minimum of two openings having a total net area of not less than one square inch for every square foot of enclosed area subject to flooding.

2. The bottom of all openings shall be no higher than one foot above grade.

3. Openings may be equipped with screens, louvers, valves or other coverings or devices provided they permit the automatic flow of floodwater both directions.

4. In lieu of a, b, or c, above, an alternate design to equalize hydrostatic flood forces on exterior walls automatically may be used. Such a design must be certified by a registered professional engineer or architect.

5. Electrical, plumbing, and other utility connections are prohibited below the base flood elevation, unless they are designed to prevent backflow into the building.

6. Cumulative within the equipment components.

7. Access to the enclosed area shall be the minimum necessary to allow for parking of vehicles (garage door) or limited storage of maintenance equipment used in connection with the premises (standard exterior door) or entry to the living area (stairway or elevator); and

8. The interior portion of such structure shall be finished to the finished floor level.

SECTION 9 1/2-3 ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS IN "V" ZONES

The FIRM designated "V" zones are High Hazard Areas. These areas have special flood hazards associated with wave wash; therefore, the following provisions shall apply in addition to the provisions of Section 9 1/2-2 and 8.

a. All buildings or structures shall be elevated to the finished floor level, the term "structures" does not include piers, which are allowed seaward of high tide.

b. The lowest supporting member (excluding pilings or columns) of all buildings or structures shall be at or above the base flood elevation level, with all space below the lowest supporting member open so that the flow of water is not impeded. Open lattice work may be used around breakaway walls may be used below the base flood level, but breakaway walls must be designed to wash away in the event of abnormal wave action, and in accordance with Section 9 1/2-9.

c. All buildings or structures shall be securely anchored on pilings or columns.

d. All pilings and columns and the attached structures shall be anchored to resist flotation, collapse, and lateral movement due to the effect of wind and water loads acting simultaneously on all building components. The anchoring and support system shall be designed with wind and water loading values which equal or exceed the 100 year mean recurrence interval (one percent annual chance flood).

e. Fill material shall not be used as structural support. Non-structural fill may be used around the perimeter of a building for landscaping/aesthetic purposes provided the fill will wash out from storm surge, thereby rendering the building free of obstruction prior to generating excessive loading forces, ramping effects, or wave deflection.

SECTION 9 1/2-4 PERMIT REQUIRED

A permit shall be required in conformance with this chapter prior to beginning any development activities which make any change in improved or unimproved real estate. Building codes issued by the City of Bay St. Louis shall satisfy this permit requirement when issued according to this chapter.

SECTION 9 1/2-5 GENERAL STANDARDS

The following provisions shall apply in all areas of special flood hazard.

a. New construction and substantial improvements shall be anchored to prevent flotation, collapse or lateral movement of the structure.

b. Manufactured homes shall be anchored to prevent flotation, collapse, or lateral movement.

c. New construction and substantial improvements shall be constructed with materials and utility equipment resistant to flood damage.

d. Electrical, heating, ventilation, plumbing, air conditioning equipment and other service facilities shall be designed and/or located to prevent flood waters from entering or accumulating within the components.

e. On-site waste disposal systems shall be designed and constructed to avoid impairment to them during flooding.

f. Any alteration, repair, reconstruction or improvements to a structure which is in compliance with the provisions of this chapter shall be designed to meet the "new construction" as contained in this chapter.

SECTION 9 1/2-2 SPECIFIC STANDARDS

The following is required in all areas of special flood hazard where base flood elevation data have been provided by the FIRM, both in "A" and "V" zones:

a. Residential Construction. New construction or substantial improvement of a building shall be elevated to or above the base flood elevation.

b. Non-Residential Construction. New construction or substantial improvement of a building shall be elevated to or above the base flood elevation.

c. Elevation of buildings with full enclosed areas formed by foundation and other exterior walls shall be designed to preclude finished living space below the base flood elevation and designed for passage of floodwaters to equalize hydrostatic flood forces on exterior walls automatically.

d. Designs for complying with this requirement must meet the following minimum criteria:

1. Provide a minimum of two openings having a total net area of not less than one square inch for every square foot of enclosed area subject to flooding.

2. The bottom of all openings shall be no higher than one foot above grade.

3. Openings may be equipped with screens, louvers, valves or other coverings or devices provided they permit the automatic flow of floodwater both directions.

4. In lieu of a, b, or c, above, an alternate design to equalize hydrostatic flood forces on exterior walls automatically may be used. Such a design must be certified by a registered professional engineer or architect.

5. Electrical, plumbing, and other utility connections are prohibited below the base flood elevation, unless they are designed to prevent backflow into the building.

6. Cumulative within the equipment components.

7. Access to the enclosed area shall be the minimum necessary to allow for parking of vehicles (garage door) or limited storage of maintenance equipment used in connection with the premises (standard exterior door) or entry to the living area (stairway or elevator); and

8. The interior portion of such structure shall be finished to the finished floor level.

SECTION 9 1/2-3 ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS IN "V" ZONES

The FIRM designated "V" zones are High Hazard Areas. These areas have special flood hazards associated with wave wash; therefore, the following provisions shall apply in addition to the provisions of Section 9 1/2-2 and 8.

a. All buildings or structures shall be elevated to the finished floor level, the term "structures" does not include piers, which are allowed seaward of high tide.

b. The lowest supporting member (excluding pilings or columns) of all buildings or structures shall be at or above the base flood elevation level, with all space below the lowest supporting member open so that the flow of water is not impeded. Open lattice work may be used around breakaway walls may be used below the base flood level, but breakaway walls must be designed to wash away in the event of abnormal wave action, and in accordance with Section 9 1/2-9.

c. All buildings or structures shall be securely anchored on pilings or columns.

d. All pilings and columns and the attached structures shall be anchored to resist flotation, collapse, and lateral movement due to the effect of wind and water loads acting simultaneously on all building components. The anchoring and support system shall be designed with wind and water loading values which equal or exceed the 100 year mean recurrence interval (one percent annual chance flood).

e. Fill material shall not be used as structural support. Non-structural fill may be used around the perimeter of a building for landscaping/aesthetic purposes provided the fill will wash out from storm surge, thereby rendering the building free of obstruction prior to generating excessive loading forces, ramping effects, or wave deflection.

SECTION 9 1/2-4 PERMIT REQUIRED

A permit shall be required in conformance with this chapter prior to beginning any development activities which make any change in improved or unimproved real estate. Building codes issued by the City of Bay St. Louis shall satisfy this permit requirement when issued according to this chapter.

SECTION 9 1/2-5 GENERAL STANDARDS

The following provisions shall apply in all areas of special flood hazard.

a. New construction and substantial improvements shall be anchored to prevent flotation, collapse or lateral movement of the structure.

b. Manufactured homes shall be anchored to prevent flotation, collapse, or lateral movement.

c. New construction and substantial improvements shall be constructed with materials and utility equipment resistant to flood damage.

d. Electrical, heating, ventilation, plumbing, air conditioning equipment and other service facilities shall be designed and/or located to prevent flood waters from entering or accumulating within the components.

e. On-site waste disposal systems shall be designed and constructed to avoid impairment to them during flooding.

f. Any alteration, repair, reconstruction or improvements to a structure which is in compliance with the provisions of this chapter shall be designed to meet the "new construction" as contained in this chapter.

SECTION 9 1/2-2 SPECIFIC STANDARDS

The following is required in all areas of special flood hazard where base flood elevation data have been provided by the FIRM, both in "A" and "V" zones:

Task force files recommendations

The Mississippi Association for Talented and Gifted, a statewide organization of professional educators, parents, and other concerned citizens, has released 'Focus and Directions: Exemplary Programs for Gifted Education in Mississippi.'

This document, compiled by the association's Task Force Committee, reflects existing and recommended practices in gifted education in the state of Mississippi.

Although some Mississippi public school districts do provide services for the gifted/talented, most do not offer comprehensive, specialized services for students in kindergarten through grade twelve.

This report is intended to provide a framework and direction for programs and services to meet the needs of the gifted children and youth of the state.

The information was collected and analyzed over a three-year period by the committee.

Members are Frances A. Karnes, chair, University of Southern Mississippi; Beverly Alexander, Moss Point Schools; Melissa Grantham, Jackson Public Schools; Gladys Ishee, Ocean Springs Schools; Suzanne Meriweather, University of Southern Mississippi; Jean Prather, Jackson Public Schools; Guy Rose, Mississippi University for Women; Marilyn Foxworth, Columbia Public Schools.

The report has been reviewed extensively by readers representing the State Board of Education, public school administrators and teachers, public school boards, higher education, parents, business and industry, and other professional and lay groups from all geographic areas of the state.

The report addresses the following components: state leadership, administrative support and responsibility, definition and identification of gifted/talented students, assessment of student needs, the written district plan, program options for gifted/talented students, curriculum, program evaluation, teacher certification/competencies, funding, support services, and parent/community awareness and involvement.

Based upon the research, the members of the Task Force offer many recommendations, but the following areas are reported as priorities for the state's focus and direction for change within the next five years:

► A legislative mandate with appropriate funding is needed to ensure comprehensive programming for all gifted and talented students in the state, grades kindergarten through twelve.

► A minimum of one full time (100 percent time allotment) state consultant for the gifted and talented is needed at the state department level to address the many areas of need in gifted/talented education.

► Gifted and talented students need a differentiated curriculum in the regular classroom in order to maximize their potential. Currently, the majority of these students are being taught at grade level rather than ability level. Every student in the state, including the gifted, should be taught at his/her instructional level. ► Attention must be given to the appropriate identification and service to gifted/talented students from low socioeconomic and/or culturally diverse backgrounds.

► Existing barriers to educational advancement for gifted/talented students should be eliminated. Mississippi's early admission policy must be changed to allow the option of early admission to kindergarten and subsequent grades for gifted students. The seven percent limit on services to gifted/talented students must be changed to allow each district to serve all gifted/talented students. Students who successfully complete high school level courses prior to the ninth grade should be awarded Carnegie units.

The report will be mailed directly to all Mississippi public school superintendents and presidents of public school boards.

To receive a copy of the report, send $5 plus $1.50 for postage and handling to Mrs. Beverly Rhodes, 134 Oak Park Drive, Forest, MS 39407.

Pass Christian Schools sponsoring "Child Find"

The Pass Christian Public School district is participating in the continuing statewide "Child Find" program for handicapped students. Child Find Coordinator, Mrs. JoAnn Brewer, is responsible for identifying, locating, and evaluating children from birth through the age of twenty-one who are physically, mentally, educationally, communicatively, and/or emotionally handicapped.

Early identification of children in need of special educational experiences is most important to each child. The information collected will help determine present and future program needs. Pass Christian

DOWN HOME

by DARLENE UNDERWOOD
Hancock County Extension
Home Economist

Reports are that there have been outbreaks of head lice among children in several of the schools in Hancock County. With a daughter in school I can well appreciate the feelings of parents who have a child sent home because of lice infestation. Head lice are not a product of poor personal hygiene or lack of cleanliness, and their presence is not a reflection on the school or family.

The Mississippi Department of Health has released the following information concerning control and elimination of this pest.

Head lice in the classroom frustrate teachers, embarrass parents and victimize children.

Teachers, parents, physicians, nurses, and children can cooperate to control lice infestation.

The first sign of lice is often intense itching in the affected area. Close inspection will reveal whitish eggs or nits, firmly attached to the hair shaft close to the scalp, or hatched lice and the itchy red mark the louse's saliva causes. Lice prefer the finer hair of the back of the head and behind the ears.

The louse respects no person. People of all social and economic levels can become infested, but lice infestation most readily appears among school children who provide obvious groupings of individuals.

Once lice enter the classroom, they can move easily from one person to another.

Fortunately, safe medications—many without prescription—exist to rid the individual of the lice. Repeat treatments are needed to kill newly hatched insects. Treatment product instructions must be followed carefully.

When a teacher finds a child with head lice, he or she should contact the child's parents. The teacher should tell the parent how to treat the child and have the parent take the child out of class until proof of treatment can be presented for readmittance to the classroom. Readmittance does not require proof of treatment from the county health department.

Parents should launder—wash and/or dry at temperature of at least 130 degrees F—all bed linens and clothing the child had worn for the past several days before discovery. They should also carefully check any other children in the home. Non-washables should be dry cleaned.

Teachers should warn students that sharing hats, combs, brushes, and other personal articles will lead to further spread of lice infestation. They should stop hanging coats close together.

The State Department of Health does not recommend school closings. In information provided to the State Department of Education and school districts statewide, health officials covered facts about head lice control and treatment.

Body and pubic or crab lice continue to be a problem. But with proper treatment with available medication and proper clean-up procedures, these infestations can be controlled.

Head Lice. Easier To Control Than Common Dandruff.

HNC Student Council activities to show dangers of drinking and driving

The Hancock North Central Student Council is planning a week of emphasis to inform students about the dangers of drinking and driving.

This will be the week of Feb. 8-12. Chairpersons of the committee planning the activities are Margaret Myers and Ken Oglesbee.

Some of the activities include a skit put on by the drama club; a slogan contest with prizes of $20, $15, and $10; posters illustrating the winning slogans drawn by the art class; showing the SADD movie and signing the contract for life; selling "Arrive Alive" bracelets when students pledge not to drink and drive.

The student council will also participate in an exchange day with Long Beach High School Student Council. Hancock Students will visit Long Beach on Feb. 3 and Long Beach will visit Hancock Feb. 10.

Our fund raising activity this month is a computer match up where each student will receive a list of the ten members of the opposite sex with whom he/she is most compatible.

River enrollment another record

Pearl River Community College's spring enrollment is another record. At the end of 1987 spring registration period 1,593 students were enrolled in full-time day classes on the Poplarville campus. At the same time here in '88 the count is 1,720, an increase of 127 students or about seven percent.

The total does not include academic or vocational-technical night classes or day students at the college's three votech centers.

In the spring of '85, 1371 students were enrolled and in '86 the full-time day total was 1,425.

Dow Ford, PRC's director of admissions, said 1034 students registered the first day of spring registration, the largest number ever to enroll during one day.

Of the total, 962 students are enrolled in academic programs, 466 in technical and 291 in vocational programs. There were 841 freshman and 879 sophomores.

In comparison, 768 students enrolled in the academic programs last year and only 667 were sophomores.

"I was pleased with registration this spring," said Ford. "Especially since we registered in two days the number we normally register in three."

Two county students competing for Space Station workshop berth

Donville Gobert of Diamondhead Academy and Zachary Daniel Ladner of St. Clare School in Waveland win among 54 of Mississippi's most talented junior high school students invited to Jackson recently to be interviewed as semi-finalists for the Student Space Station workshop.

The group, representing sixth and seventh graders statewide, was chosen as semi-finalists earlier this year.

Each of the semi-finalists had a 15-minute personal interview with members of the student selection committee. All 54 were asked to answer the same questions regarding space travel, why they want to participate in the Student Space Station workshop, what kinds of experiments have they proposed to conduct during the workshop, etc.

Each interview was videotaped for review and committee members will now begin the process of selecting about 30 students to participate in the project which is scheduled to begin in mid-July. Names of the finalists will be announced by Governor Ray Mabus during a news conference in March which will be attended by several NASA astronauts.

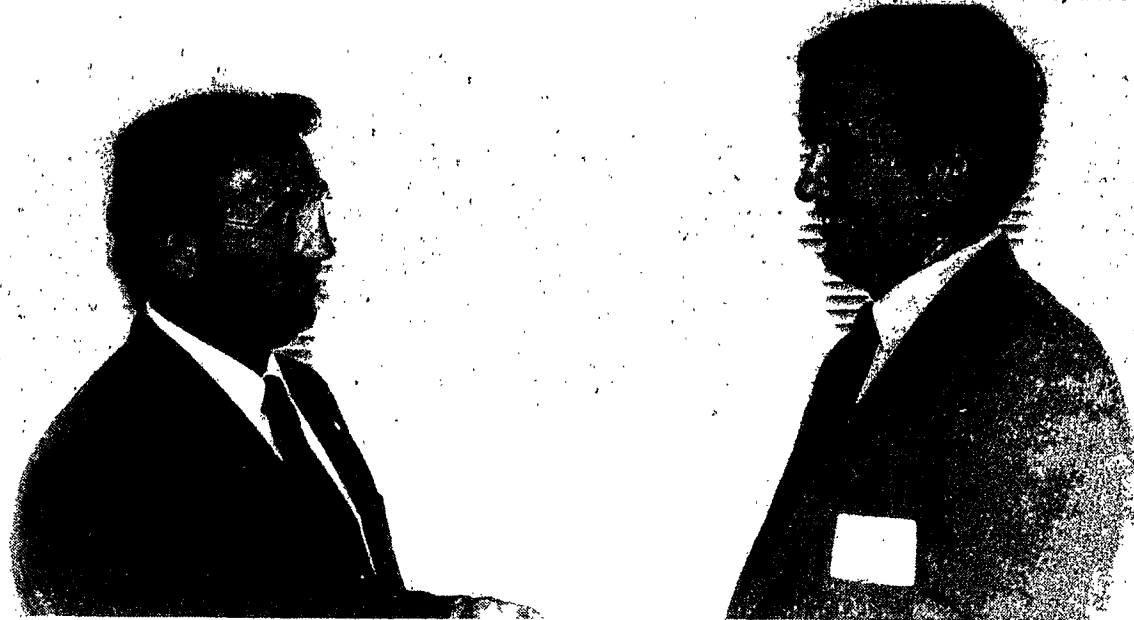

The Student Space Station workshop is a two-week educational experience for sixth and seventh graders. During the first week, students undergo intensive classroom work. Instructors for these sessions will include members of the NASA staff. Following a trip to the Johnson Space Flight Center in Houston, Texas, the workshop culminates with a simulated space mission aboard a model of the space station.

The Student Space Station will be located in Jackson, adjacent to the Davis Planetarium. Ground-breaking ceremonies for construction of the station will be held in February.

The City of Jackson, the Davis Planetarium Foundation, NASA, the State Department of Education, the Jackson Public School District, Belhaven College, and the Institute for Technology Development are sponsoring the workshop.

The Student Space Station is being funded entirely through private donations. Anyone interested in contributing to or in volunteering to help with the project should contact Dick Knapp, project director, Davis Planetarium, Box 17, Jackson, MS 39205, or call 960-1550.

THE SEARS-ROEBUCK FOUNDATION awards a $20,000 Keep America Working (KAW) Project grant to the Mississippi Community and Junior College Economic Development Foundation, Inc. Dr. Ted Alexander, left, president of Pearl River Junior College and a member of the MCJCEDF Board of Directors, accepts the check from Carroll Foster, general manager of the Sears-Roebuck Jackson Metro Store. The grant will be used to develop human resources statewide utilizing the community/junior college network in cooperation with business, industry and labor.

Some student exchange causing problems

RESTON, Va.—Student exchange programs can be one of the best educational experiences in a student's school career. But this year a number of substandard exchange programs have caused headaches for students, educators and parents alike.

"America's youth must become world citizens if our nation is to survive in the increasingly competitive world," said Douglas W. Hunt, associate executive director, National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP). "One of the best ways to achieve this is through travel and exchange programs where students from the United States spend time in schools abroad and vice versa."

"This year we are seeing more groups running exchanges and more students participating. And we are finding more problems such as foreign youngsters arriving at high school on their first day of school to attend class, and no one in the school had ever heard of the student. Already this school year, we've had a flood of complaints from schools."

To meet this challenge several educational organizations have formed the Council on Standards for International Education Travel (CSIET) and published recommendations for such travel in a book, "Advisory List of International Educational Travel and Exchange Programs, 1988."

"While student exchanges are tremendous learning experiences and the vast majority are well administered, the plain fact is that some are ripping off students, host families and educators," said Hunt, who also serves as chairman of the CSIET Board of Directors.

"There are a few entrepreneurs coming into this field who are out only to make a quick buck at the expense of high school students and their parents. They are simply substandard."

The CSIET publication covers nine standards: participant selection, participant placement, organizational profile and educational perspective promotion, insurance, operations, financial strength, adherence to government regulations, and agreement to an annual review by CSIET.

"Any reputable organization offering a travel/study program wants to maintain and build up its reputation," advises the publication. "It therefore has nothing to hide and stands ready to answer legitimate inquiries from prospective clients."

CSIET encourages people to:

- Identify the agency bearing legal responsibility if there is any hint that it may be different from the promoting organization.
- Carefully read advertisements noting how long the organizations have been offering study tours, the amount of direct supervision it exercises abroad, the composition of its board of advisers, if any, the methods of recruiting, vague statements or exaggerated claims.

Correspond with educators or advisers named in the advertisement. Beware of vague, generalized "recommendations" of the value of foreign travel.

Address inquiries to parents or students who have previously participated. Insist on receiving a list of participants and their addresses.

Check with leaders or chaperones of the sponsoring organizations in former years, especially those in the vicinity, about their experiences. The book may be ordered from CSIET, 1906 Association Drive, Reston, VA 22091. The cost is $5 per copy.

Pass High junior competing in US Senate programs

Jonathan Emerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Emerson of Pass Christian, was recently selected as Pass Christian High School's nominee for the Japan-U.S. Senate Scholarship Program competition.

As Pass High's nominee, he will compete with high school juniors statewide for the two state scholarships to Japan this summer.

The Japan-U.S. Senate scholarship program, a unique international educational exchange for U.S. high school students, has been funded by the Japanese government since 1981. It provides full scholarships to send 100 American exchange students to Japan for a summer.

During his high school years Emerson has been in Student Council, Beta Club, Science Club, and French Clubs. His is also on the newspaper staff, has been in the band, and has participated in the Quiz Bowl.

Emerson has received numerous academic awards during his years at Pass Christian High School. He was named Superior Underclassman Achiever in the Spring of 1987 for the highest underclassman academic average in the school.

In addition, he received the Chemistry Award, received first place in the school Science Fair and second place in the Regional Science Fair. He also won second place in the Rotary Journalism Scholarship competition.

Emerson was chosen as one of twelve semi-finalists state-wide to be interviewed for this exchange program. He has also been selected as one of two alternates to the US-Japan Senate Exchange Program. As an alternate Jonathan will receive a $1,000 partial scholarship to go to Japan this summer.

PRC joins in observance of National Community College Month

POPLARVILLE—This February, Pearl River Community College will join with more than 1,200 other community, technical and junior colleges in the U.S. to celebrate National Community College Month. It is a celebration of past success and future achievements of community colleges and their students.

"More and more Americans are choosing community colleges for their educational needs," said Dr. Ted J. Alexander, PRC president. "Our ability to provide diverse programs and specialized services makes community colleges an affordable option for everyone."

Dr. Alexander said the role of community colleges has expanded in the past 67 years to keep Mississippi up with the nation's changing needs. Since Pearl River began the Mississippi public junior college concept in 1921, the number of community, technical and junior colleges has grown nationwide from a handful in the mid-twenties to 553 in 1937 to today's 1,222.

More than four million students took credit classes at America's community colleges last year, representing over 41 percent of all undergraduate students and 55 percent of all first-time freshmen in the U.S.

Here in Mississippi over 60 percent of all college freshmen and sophomores are enrolled in the public community junior college system.

While over 50 percent of the 58,000 junior college students are in the transfer system, a large number are in vocational, technical, industrial services and other programs related directly to developing a technically skilled work force.

Pearl River is experiencing a record enrollment and will serve more than 3,200 students this year.

"Because we are community-based, we are responsible to meet the needs of our specific district," explained Dr. Alexander. The PRC District includes Forrest, Hancock, Jeff Davis, Lamar, Marion and Pearl River counties.

"Through educational partnerships with local business and industry, and elementary and high schools, we are able to keep up with the changing educational and technical demands of our residents and provide them with the education they need to succeed," said Dr. Alexander.

Pearl River's ability to respond to change and initiate programs to meet the needs of business and individuals has given the institution the opportunity to broaden its educational scope.

"We literally have something for everyone at PRC," said Alexander. "We offer quality programs, including associate in arts and science degrees or the first two years of a bachelor's degree, plus career education and personal enrichment classes."

Pearl River programs attract a cross-section of the community. Men and women, young and old, attend classes during day and evening hours. Our 3,200 students include women returning to school after raising their families, recent high school graduates, industrial employees interested in upgrading their job skills, retired adults, and persons preparing for a second career.

"People come to Pearl River for several reasons," said Alexander.

"While our smaller class sizes, experienced faculty and convenient location attract some, others find our broad scope of instruction and exciting learning environment appealing."

"The quality of instruction at PRC is evident by the success of our students and alumni," said Alexander. "We are proud of our students and our service to the community. We invite all community residents to join with us in celebrating National College Month."

For more information about Community College Month, call Larry L. Stanford, Director of Public Relations at 795-6801, ext. 313.

Grant funds darter research

HATTIESBURG—The Department of Biological Sciences at the University of Southern Mississippi has received a $21,000 grant from the Mississippi Department of Wildlife Conservation for research of the bayou darter.

The bayou darter, a small fish found only in the Bayou Pierre system located southwest of Jackson, currently is federally threatened, said project director Dr. Stephen Ross, a professor of biology at USM.

"What this actually means," Ross said, "is sediment changes in the river system, because of land use along the system, are threatening the lives of the darters."

USM, now in its third year of conducting the study, will use its findings from the darter research to "help state agencies protect the habitat of this fish," Ross said.

Millsaps to dedicate new hall

JACKSON—Millsaps College will dedicate its new Franklin W. Olin Hall of Science during the annual Founders' Day celebration in an academic ceremony beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 13.

Lawrence W. Milas, president of the Olin Foundation, will formally present the new building, which houses the departments of biology and chemistry.

Dr. H. C. Brown, Nobel Laureate and Emeritus Professor of Chemistry at Purdue University, will give the inaugural Robert and Alma Moreton Lecture in Science as the dedicatory address. Following the ceremony and official ribbon cutting, guests will be invited to tour the science building, constructed and equipped with a $5.5 million grant from the Franklin W. Olin Foundation.

"The Olin Hall of Science makes it possible for Millsaps faculty to offer students an in-depth understanding of modern scientific methods and concepts, greater precision in using scientific equipment and opportunity for advanced student research projects," Millsaps President George M. Harmon said.

"Few colleges in the United States are able to make available, on a routine basis, a similar complement of sophisticated equipment to undergraduate students."

Millsaps was chosen for the Olin Foundation grant in 1985. "The grant reflects the foundation's recognition of the college's academic excellence and healthy financial status," Foundation President Milas said.

"The Olin Foundation sees Millsaps College as clearly on the move and expects the college to gain increasing recognition throughout the country for its academic achievements and the opportunity it affords young people for a first-rate liberal arts education."

The Olin Foundation makes grants to independent colleges and universities for the total cost of new academic buildings and libraries. Since 1938 the foundation has made grants in excess of $153,000,000 for 51 buildings at 40 different institutions.

All-in-one baby center at Hancock Medical unique on Gulf Coast

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Hancock Medical Center's obstetrics unit is a vital link in the Bay St. Louis facility's efforts to keep newborn infants in as sterile an environment as possible.

Having a self-contained unit allows a newborn to go from the delivery room through an inside corridor to the nursery, according to LuAnn Favre, obstetrics supervisor.

This inside corridor is protected and only traversed by obstetrics nurses and mothers being taken to their room following delivery, thus even the nursery entrance is a protected environment.

To further protect the newborns, outside doors to the obstetrics unit are closed whenever babies are taken to their mother's rooms therefore even while being taken to be with their mothers, the babies are kept in a protected environment.

There is no admittance to the unit when newborns are taken to their mothers' rooms and only the fathers are allowed inside.

This time is called "bonding time" by Favre, and allows mothers and fathers and infants to get to know each other by spending this time together without any other people around.

The first three to five days bonding time is very important in a newborn's development, she said.

The self-contained unit, also allows a woman to be taken from the labor room, to the delivery room and to her own hospital room without being taken through an outside corridor, Favre said.

According to Favre, an important task of obstetrics nurses to insure that a baby is born healthy is fetal monitoring to assess the baby's condition during labor.

"We also provide one-on-one care to the women in labor as much as possible to help them be more at ease," she said.

The hospital also offers child birth classes to expectant mothers and fathers.

"We feel prenatal education is important so parents will know what is expected of them and what is happening," she said.

Many people have fear of childbirth and it is more a fear of the unknown than the event itself, Favre added.

"The child birth classes help people rid themselves of the fear syndrome and the fear-tension cycle can be alleviated," she said.

"It is important that this be overcome because fear causes tension and tension cause pain in childbirth," Favre said.

Expectant parents can call Favre at the hospital for information on childbirth classes.

BONDING TIME—Mr. and Mrs. Terry Benard admire their newborn son, Adam Patrick, who was born Feb. 3 at the Hancock Medical Center. He weighed eight pounds and one ounce at birth. Bonding time at HMC is a special time shared only by the new baby and its parents. Obstetrics Supervisor Lu Ann Favre says bonding time is very important for parents and their new child to get to know each other. (Staff photo by Brenda Heathcock)

Fields of Bay St. Louis, was one of approximately 400 area youth who participated in the annual Krewe of Kids parade Saturday in Bay St. Louis. Parade organizer Lisa Cowand said there were many more youth in the parade this year than previous years and plans for expanding the Krewe of Kids carnival festivities in 1989 include the organization's first ball. DISCUSS LITTER PROBLEMS—Several local officials met Friday at the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce office to discuss litter problems throughout the county. Those attending the roundtable discussion included, from left, Hancock County Justice Court Judge Lee Klein, Supervisor Robert Peterson, Walter Beebe, Port and Harbor commissioner; Supervisor Ronald Cuevas; Bill Johnson, county maintenance superintendent; Michael Haas Sr., Youth Court judge; John Chevris, Cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland Judge; John Seafide, Bay St. Louis City Attorney; and Bay Police Chief Ray Murphy. Others attending were Supervisor Mike Ladner, Justice Court Judge Joseph Dobson; Bay Mayor Victor J. Frankiewicz Jr.; Hancock Sheriff Ronald Peterson, Waveland Police Chief Donald Dorn; Hancock County Prosecutor John Genin, Rick Eagan, chamber president; Libby Milner, chamber executive director; and Ellis Cuevas, chamber director and beautification chairman. Litter laws, community involvement, public education, litter collection areas and a general county-wide clean-up were among the topics of discussion. Further discussion is to be conducted at a board of supervisor's workshop meeting this week. (Staff photo by Brenda Heathcock)

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District received a "fantastic, great" report from recent State Department of Education accreditation visitors, Superintendent Roger Oge told school board members Friday.

"The report on special education, vocational and general accreditation from the on site visit will be one of the best reports around," he quoted the state department team as saying.

Oge told the board the accreditation team said the report on the Bay school district would be a "super report."

Oge also reported the accreditation visitors said they found that school operations were meeting or exceeding state department guidelines.

Major problems are basically related to lack of space and the public's indulgence in passing the bond issue will help the school keep accreditation, according to a report by the visitors.

Oge also told the board, the accreditation team understood the problem of lack of space and realized that the needed space would be available when the building program is complete.

Also at the meeting Oge recommended several school administrators for positions in the 1988-89 school year.

Roger James, James Baldree, W.J. Cameron and Woody Alliston were unanimously approved as principals for the next school year.

A recommendation for Billy Rhodes, who has been serving as principal of Bay Senior High since the retirement of Frank Ladner, received two votes in favor and two opposing votes.

Board members Betty Diboll and Danny Carter voted in favor of the recommendation and Linda Penrose and Reginald Robinson voted nay.

Board member Charles Benvenutti was away from the meeting at a medical emergency when the vote was taken.

Later in the meeting when Benvenutti returned Oge requested the board to reconsider his recommendation for Rhodes as principal.

School board attorney Lucien Gex advised the board not to reconsider the motion.

Rhodes was later approved as an assistant principal for the next school year.

A letter signed by 22 faculty members at Bay Senior High and supporting Rhodes as principal was submitted to the school board.

Teachers attending the meeting also addressed the board in favor of the recommendation for Rhodes as principal.

Gale McRaney was approved as an assistant principal with three favorable votes and Penrose voting nay.

The board also approved a change in the school calendar which resulted in faculty, staff and students getting an extra day of Mardi Gras holidays.

An inclement weather day which was included in the schedule in the event schools were closed due to bad weather was removed from the schedule and listed as a holiday for Ash Wednesday, Feb. 17.

BEARD SPARKING NEWS—The local Medical Center has received word that a special delivery is expected to arrive in the form of a baby girl, Michelle Lee Ritchie. Michelle Lee was born February 4 and is the daughter of Michelle Ritchie of Bay St. Louis. She weighed five pounds and 12 ounces at birth. (Staff photo by Brenda Headlock.)

Caring for your baby

No other baby is exactly like yours yet every baby has common needs that must be cared for. The most important one, of course, is health. So one of the first things you should do is choose a doctor for your baby and follow the advice given in this important aspect of baby care. The following information may help make your baby care more efficient and easier.

SLEEPING
Babies sleep a lot but they don't all sleep the same length of time. Some are more active than others, more watchful and fussy. They demand more attention.

Others are more peaceful and quiet. You may even have a wake them for a feeding.

You will learn a little of your baby's temperament in the hospital, particularly if the hospital permits a rooming-in arrangement.

By the time you bring your baby home, you will know something about infant sleeping habits.

Make sure that the room in which your baby sleeps is comfortable—around 70°F.

Avoid too many clothes or heavy blankets.

An circulation is desirable but make sure your baby sleeps out of drafts.

Many babies like to sleep in their stamach. Don't worry about this if it's what your baby likes. Babies will automatically turn their heads to one side when they are prone in their cribs.

You may want to change the sleeping position occasionally, though. It does not harm and may even be helpful.

The older your baby gets, the fewer the naps, and the longer your baby will sleep at one time.

However, it may be a while before your baby sleeps through the night. There is no set schedule for this. Some never do. Others will do so at about three months. Still others, sooner.

Parents, particularly mothers, will have to adapt their sleeping patterns to the baby in the early stages.

Care of umbilical cord

If the baby's umbilical cord has not fallen off before you leave the hospital, the hospital staff will probably give you instructions for its care.

Usually it has dropped off by the fifth day of life.

The navel should be cleaned with a cotton ball moistened in a mild antiseptic every time you change your baby's diapers.

Also, the diaper should be positioned below the area so it doesn't contribute to the irritation.

If the area looks infected, that is, if redness or swelling is present, call your doctor.

If your baby is a boy and he has been circumcised, cleanse his genital area gently and apply any ointment your doctor has recommended.

Applying the ointment is usually not necessary after 48 hours. Be careful to keep any gauze wrapping or the diaper from sticking to the circumcision.

If ointment or petroleum jelly has been applied, cloths generally will not stick.

Feeding your baby

The most important thing about a baby's nutrition is to start the infant on the way to good health, but almost as important is the contribution the act of feeding makes to the baby's emotional development.

BREAST-FEEDING
The decision about whether or not to breast-feed is entirely up to the mother. Make it freely according to your own judgment and feelings.

You should, however, be as well informed as possible and you should discuss it with your own doctor.

Today both medical and popular opinion favor breast-feeding, because it benefits both mother and child.

For the baby, breast milk is more easily digested, provides excellent nutrition, and contains antibodies that protect against infection.

For the mother, breast-feeding helps speed the return of the uterus to normal size and is generally found to be convenient and economical.

For both, it provides the most intimate way a mother can care for her baby.

Parenting Center programs provide guidance, support

In years passed, parenting skills were passed from mother to daughter. However in today's transient society, mothers and daughters often live hundreds of miles apart, therefore, new mothers are seeking other sources of guidance and support.

The Parenting Center at Slidell Memorial Hospital and Medical Center can fill that role for parents.

"STEP (Systematic Training for Effective Parenting)," a workshop offering parents a realistic and practical approach to meeting the challenges of raising children today, will be held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., March 1.

Presented by Joanna Barnes, MS, this training encourages mutual respect, cooperation, responsibility, and self-reliance. There is a $25 fee for this workshop, which meets for eight sessions.

A STEP program for parents of junior high and high school students is also offered. "STEP/TEEN" deals with approaches to resolving parent/teen problems, improving and strengthening responsibility, communications and logical consequences.

Susie Thompson, MSW, BSW, is the facilitator in this program, which will meet from 7 to 8:30 p.m. March 29 and continue for eight sessions.

her child and initiates a very special and loving relationship.

If you have enrolled in a prenatal course you will find that breastfeeding will be one of the subjects covered.

You will be encouraged to breast-feed, but your decision will be based on your judgment, your instinctive reactions, and your physical makeup.

And it will be the right one for you and your baby.

Techniques of nursing

During those first days in the hospital, learn as much as you can from the nurses and your baby.

The nurses can show you different methods of holding your baby while nursing. You can discover in which positions you are most comfortable and your baby will indicate a preference.

NURSING AT HOME

The good start in the hospital will help you get a good start at home. That's when you and the baby really get to know each other.

At the hospital, the staff made sure the baby was dry, comfortable, and awake before nursing.

At home, it will be up to you. Always change the baby before nursing.

Arrange your own schedule of feeding to fit your baby's personality and needs. You should nurse often enough to satisfy the baby and increase your milk supply.

However, allow the baby to get hungry enough to suckle vigorously. You will sense your baby's pattern in a week or two.

Most breast-fed babies are fed frequently.

sions. The cost is $25.

Communications is a major focus in parenting programs. "How to Talk so Kids Will Listen and Listen so Kids Will Talk" offers new communication skills and methods that enhance cooperation between parent and child by helping children deal with their feelings, providing alternatives to punishment, and encouraging independence.

Presented by Claudia Gordan, RN, MSN, and Joanna Barnes, MS, the next session of "How to Talk So Kids Will Listen and Listen so Kids Will Talk" training sessions will begin April 6.

Six sessions will be held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. and there is a $20 fee, which includes child care provided by Wee Wisdom Nursery, 1344 East Ridge Drive (641-2710). Reservations for nursery service must be made when registering.

"Taming Your Tornado: The Overactive/Hyperactive Child" will be held from 7 to 9 p.m., Monday, April 18. This panel discussion is being offered free of charge and is led by Dr. Pat Aptaker, who will include psychological, as well as educational and medical solutions and options in managing this behavior.

Panel members include Dr. Ap-taker, Cheryl Beaver, MA (Ed. Consultant), and Dr. Donna Linder, MD.

While strengthening parent-child relationships is a major focus in many of The Parenting Center workshops, developing a strong bond between siblings is also recognized as an important tool in maintaining a harmonious household.

"Siblings Without Rivalry" will be presented in two sessions, beginning at 9:30 a.m., Monday, April 11, and 7 p.m., Thursday, April 14. The cost for the five-meeting sessions is $20, which includes child care provided by Wee Wisdom. Again, reservations must be made when registering.

Topics of discussion in this series include helping siblings deal with their feelings about each other, keeping children separated and unequal, siblings in roles, when kids fight, and problem solving.

Claudia Gordan, RN, MSN, and Lynn Marzoni, MSW, BSW, will lead these sessions.

Registration may be made by telephone or by mail until classes are filled. All classes are held at SMH. For further information or to register, please call The Parenting Center of SMH at 649-6529.

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District received a "fantastic, great" report from recent State Department of Education accreditation visitors, Superintendent Roger Oge' told school board members Friday.

"The report on special education, vocational and general accreditation from the on site visit will be one of the best reports around," he quoted the state department team as saying.

Oge' told the board the accreditation team said the report on the Bay school district would be a "super report."

Oge' also reported the accreditation school operations were meeting or exceeding state department guidelines.

Major problems are basically related to lack of space and the public's indulgence in passing the bond issue will help the school keep accreditation, according to a report by the visitors.

Oge' also told the board, the accreditation team understood the problem of lack of space and realized that the needed space would be available when the building program is complete.

Also at the meeting Oge' recommended several school administrators for positions in the 1988-89 school year.

Roger James, James Baldree, W.J. Cameron and Woody Alliston were unanimously approved as principals for the next school year.

A recommendation for Billy Rhodes, who has been serving as principal of Bay Senior High since the retirement of Frank Ladner, received two votes in favor and two opposing votes.

Board members Betty Diboll and Danny Carter voted in favor of the recommendation and Linda Penrose and Reginald Robinson voted nay.

Board member Charles Benvenuti was away from the meeting at a medical emergency when the vote was taken.

Later in the meeting when Benvenuti returned Oge' requested the board to reconsider his recommendation for Rhodes as principal.

School board attorney Lucien Gex advised the board not to reconsider the motion.

Rhodes was later approved as an assistant principal for the next school year.

A letter signed by 22 faculty members at Bay Senior High and supporting Rhodes as principal was submitted to the school board.

Bathing your baby

Until the umbilical cord falls off, you should bathe your baby out of the water with a soft washcloth and soap and water except for the face. Use plain water on the face.

This is often called a sponge bath and it helps prevent the navel area from getting wet, which could help start an infection.

Bathe your baby whenever it is convenient for you. Use cotton balls around ears, eyes, and nose to clean away wax and mucus.

Do not put the cotton swab in nostrils or ear canal.

Be very careful and gentle when wiping around your baby's eyes. Wipe from the inside to the outside.

After the umbilical cord has healed (and, with boys, the circumcision also if you have elected to have this procedure performed), you can get the baby wet all over.

That's the time for tub bathing. Any size tub, basin, or even the kitchen sink is fine to use.

Fill the tub with enough water for your baby to enjoy (most of them do), but not so much that it splashes all over.

Make sure the water is warm but not too hot. Test the temperature first with the inside of your wrist or elbow.

Now you are ready to put the baby in the water. But active babies combined with water and a little mild soap can get very slippery.

You must be careful how you hold them.

To wash your baby, you'll want to use mild soap or liquid cleaner.

Keep all the paraphernalia you use in your baby's bath very close on the table or counter you've set the tub on, so you never have to leave the baby unattended while bathing. For the rest, play with the baby a little and enjoy the bath.

Fathers like to bathe babies, too. It really is one of the fun tasks with baby. Babies are so intrigued by the water and getting clean makes them feel so good that chances are he'll want to help.

Love is important in baby care

Is loving part of baby's care? It's all of it. It's why you do what you do. Yet there'll be many times in the first months of your baby's life when you don't think your little one is so lovable.

Times when your baby wakes you in the middle of the night, then takes much too long to feed.

At times like this you can hear your maternal instinct slamming the door on its way out.

It may help you to know that, no matter how you feel, the baby becomes attached to you very early in life.

A baby in the third or fourth week of life may smile at mother's voice and not smile for any other sound in the world.

Early in the first year of life, your baby will distinguish your face and feel distressed when you're not there. In a handful of months you have taught your baby to respond to your love. And, as the song says, that's what the world needs now.

Parents, toddlers in training

Keeping in shape is a life-long challenge, which can begin at The Parenting Center of Slidell Memorial Hospital, where babies and toddlers are tuning up in an ongoing series of exercise classes.

In "Baby Gym (three months to pre-walking)," parents and their infants participate together in more than 60 exercises and games that enhance coordination and physical and mental ability.

Parents are advised to come dressed for action. The next Baby Gym series will begin at 10:30 a.m., February 23, and continues for four consecutive Tuesdays.

There is a $12 registration fee.

Healthy exercise habits are continued in "Toddler (13 to 30 months)" and "Parent/Toddler II Class (24 to 36 months)." Although classes have already begun for these spring session programs, be sure to call The Parenting Center today to sign up for the next series.

Wednesday, April 6, from 9:30 to 11 a.m., the first in four sessions of "Parent/Preschooler Class (3, 4, 5 years)" will be held at The Parenting Center.

This program focuses on child development principles and early childhood education for the school age child. Topics include setting limits, ages and stages of development, realistic expectations, self-esteem, speech, language and social development, as well as school readiness.

Susan Higgins, MA, and Cathy Henderson, MA, present this class. There is a $20 registration fee for this class, which includes child care provided by Wee Wisdom Nursery, 1344 East Ridge Drive (641-2710). Reservations for nursery must be made when registering.

The next "ABC (After the Baby Comes) Parent/Infant Class" will begin Thursday, April 7, and continues for seven consecutive Thursdays from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

The cost is $20 for this learning/support program. Topics discussed include nutrition and feeding, growth and development, teething, infant stimulation, play, selecting toys, choosing child care, handling sickness, exercise and massage, activities/songs, and infant CPR.

Tess Ott, MEd, presents this series, which includes two evening sessions to especially accommodate fathers.

Taffy Morrison, assistant director of The Parenting Center, explains the purpose of the classes is "to help parents understand more about their relationship with their child as they learn about their child's development, as well as their own needs."

Through lectures and discussion times, the parents learn more about the meaning of their child's behavior.

"All children are different and develop in their own unique way," Morrison continued. "These classes provide a great opportunity for parents to meet and gain support from other parents, while learning about their child's behavior and development."

For further information or to pre-register, call The Parenting Center at Slidell Memorial Hospital and Medical Center at 649-8529. All classes are held at SMH.

Car safety

Car doors have injured many little hands and we all seem to have a tendency to slam our doors.

A child of any age should not be allowed to stand in the car, especially in the front.

Purchase and use a car seat for your baby. And use a seat belt yourself.

When shopping for a car seat, make sure the one you buy is federally approved. Then have it installed according to the directions.

Car accidents kill nearly 1,000 children under five years of age each year.

Almost all of these fatalities could have been prevented by the proper use of a federally approved car seat. Always read the instructions and follow them.

Why do babies cry?

Babies cry because they are hungry or wet, too hot, or too cold, because they are ill, or simply because they want attention.

The way they cry seems to contain the message they want to convey. You will soon recognize the difference between cries.

When you want to respond to your baby's cry, don't be put off by friends or relatives who say you're spoiling your child.

You won't spoil a tiny infant and you must investigate the baby's needs.

And if your baby is crying just to be held, who is to say that is not a legitimate reason to cry?

Of course, the real fear you have when you hear your baby cry is that the child may be ill. Because an infant's system is so small and delicate we are all concerned about something going wrong.

That's why you take your baby regularly to a doctor. When you do, tell of any little difference in your baby that worries you.

The doctor will probably reassure you but at the same time will be developing a better picture of your baby's normal pattern. This can be valuable if your baby ever really does get ill.

Because you know your baby best, you can tell when all is not well. Some signs of illness in babies are loss of appetite, flushed look, lethargy in an active child, watery, frequent stools, vomiting, or a fever.

Baby Care.....

quently during the day and once or twice at night, at least for the first few weeks.

Many authorities caution against nursing a baby while in bed lying down, especially at night.

Burping

After each feeding, and sometimes during, you will want to help your baby get rid of any air swallowed.

There are three effective ways to do this.

- 1) Over your shoulder. Hold the baby in an upright carrying position supporting the head on your shoulder. Then gently smooth the baby's back upward or pat it with your hand.
- 2) On your lap, face downward. Support the baby's head and gently smooth or pat the back.
- 3) Also on your lap but with the baby sitting up. Support head and back with one hand, head and front with the other. Gently help the baby bow, occasionally sitting the infant upright to rest.

If your baby doesn't burp readily, don't try to force a burp. The baby has probably not swallowed any air and doesn't need burping.

Infant formula

If breast-feeding is not your choice, or should it be discontinued before your baby's first birthday, commercially prepared infant formula is the best alternative to breast milk.

Infant formula is patterned closely after breast milk so there is a similar balance and quality of protein, fat, and carbohydrates, and the nutrients are specially formulated to be easily digested by the baby's delicate system.

With infant formula, your baby may take more at each feeding than breast-fed babies and require less frequent feedings. However, your doctor will tell you how much to give at each feeding as the baby grows.

Sometimes, even the breast-feeding mother finds circumstances in which she will miss a feeding and cannot supply her breast milk.

In that case, while the baby is still less than a year old, infant formula is the best alternative.

Or, if your doctor suspects your baby is milk-sensitive, he or she may recommend that you feed your baby a milk-free formula.

NO COW'S MILK

Cow's milk should not be given to babies under one year of age for

- these important reasons:
1. Cow's milk has too much protein—far more than babies need.
  2. The kind of fat in cow's milk is more difficult for babies to digest and absorb than the fat in breast milk and formula.
  3. Cow's milk has much more sodium than is recommended for young babies.
  4. Cow's milk has neither enough vitamin C nor enough copper and iron. This can lead to iron deficiency.

Formula-feeding includes love, too

You will find it very satisfying to both you and your baby if you try to make the physical contact during feedings as intimate as possible so your baby gets not only nutrition that is similar to breast-feeding nutrition but also the same kind of close, intimate contact.

This close "bonding" is important to the baby's sense of well-being now and later in his or her development.

That way, breast-feeding or formula, you will make your baby's first year an adventure in closeness—as it should be.

DIAPERING

Traditionally, diapering has been considered the least pleasant of the baby chores but it's simple. And it makes your baby so comfortable that it's rewarding. When you or another caring adult does it, play with the baby a little afterward to make it even more pleasant.

First aid for the choking child

All children put things into their mouths that don't belong there. This starts as a learning process when the infant "mouths" an object to learn how it is shaped, how it tastes and feels. Exploration progresses to finger and thumbsucking for satisfaction and comfort.

During these developmental stages, various objects are swallowed, such as coins or marbles. Sometimes the objects are more unusual—plastic toys, play bullets, or pins. Most of these objects, as bad as they sound, pass through the stomach and bowel with no difficulty.

Rarely, they become stuck somewhere within the gastrointestinal tract and have to be surgically removed. (This is usually suspected when the patient does not pass the object in the stool in two to three days and has severe abdominal pain or swelling.)

A more common and serious emergency results when a swallowed object causes choking. This is one of the most feared and frightening accidents that parents—and children—can experience.

Prevention is the first line of defense. As a general rule, children under four years old should not be given any hard-to-chew food such as carrots, grapes, hot dogs, peanuts, popcorn or hard candy. All children should learn the following safety rules:

- Do not put objects other than food or drink into the mouth.
- Do not laugh or talk with food or liquid in the mouth.
- Do not throw food into the air and catch it in the mouth.

If choking does occur, the following emergency treatment guidelines have been released by the American Academy of Pediatrics along with instructions for Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) since both are often necessary.

If an infant under one year of age chokes and is unable to breathe he is placed face down over the rescuer's arm with head lower than the trunk. The rescuer rests his forearm on his thigh.

Four measured blows are rapidly delivered with the heel of the hand between the infant's shoulder blades. If the breathing is not started, the infant is rolled over and four rapid compressions of the chest are performed as for CPR.

A choking child over one year of age should be placed on his back with the rescuer kneeling next to him and placing the heel of one hand on the child's abdomen in the midline between the umbilicus and rib cage.

A series of 60 to 100 abdominal thrusts—Heimlich maneuver—(rapid inward and upward thrusts) should be applied until the foreign body is expelled. The older, larger child can be treated in a sitting, standing or recumbent position using two hands for the thrusts.

If breathing is not started, open mouth with thumb over tongue and fingers wrapped around lower jaw. If a foreign body is seen it may be removed with a finger sweep.

Rapid transport to a medical facility is urgent if these emergency first aid measures fail.

Parents need to be familiar with these directions, and should also receive personal instruction in both the "Heimlich Maneuver" and CPR. The Education Department at Slidell Memorial Hospital annually offers courses in CPR which includes the Heimlich Maneuver. For more information call 649-8555.

Slidell Memorial Hospital Neonatal intensive care

"No family wants to think about it. Yet, one in 20 families will experience the birth of a premature or critically ill child. At Slidell Memorial Hospital, the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit is equipped to handle nearly every problem faced by premature or ill newborns.

Staffed by two full-time physicians who specialize in the care of sick newborns (neonatologists), the NICU offers 24-hour care, close to home, with a staff of specially-trained nurses.

In the NICU, nurses and physicians carefully monitor infants with technology that allows them to make sure the infant's tiny lungs and heart are working properly.

With the NICU located in the Labor and Delivery Suite, expectant families can be sure that the most up-to-date and caring medical treatment is available in the event of an emergency.

And some families choose to deliver at Slidell Memorial because of the feeling of safety and security they get knowing the hospital has modern NICU capabilities.

In addition to providing immediate care for sick newborns born at SMH, the NICU features a highly-skilled transport team that travels to other area hospitals that do not have a neonatal intensive care unit.

The transport team consists of a neonatologist, a specially-trained transport nurse, a respiratory therapist, and a paramedic or emergency medical technician.

When called, the team can rush by ambulance or helicopter to another hospital, connect the newborn to lifesaving monitoring equipment, and transport the baby to the SMH Neonatal Intensive Care Unit for treatment.

Each member of the team is carefully trained to stabilize the baby, monitor its vital functions, and respond in the case of an emergency during the transport.

One of the NICU's current residents is Crawshandra McKinney, a tiny baby girl who was born Oct. 13, 1987—nearly four months before she was due.

Even though she was born weighing only 2½ pounds, Crawshandra has steadily gained weight and is now eating regular food and breathing without the help of a ventilator.

Doctors expect to continue monitoring and caring for the baby girl until late February.

For more information on the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit, call the Regional Women's Center at Slidell Memorial Hospital at 646-0560.

Formula.....

anemia.

5. And, finally, cow's milk can form a hard "curd" in the stomach that may result in digestive difficulties in young infants. Both breast milk and formula form a softer curd gentler to your baby's developing system.

Infant formulas come in a variety of forms—ready-to-use liquid, concentrated liquid, powder, and the ready-to-use liquid in its own bottle.

The ready-to-use form in its own bottle is the most convenient method of all and is ideal for the breast-feeding mother who only uses infant formula occasionally.

Where bottle-feeding is the daily method of feeding, you will probably choose one of the other three forms for economy.

With any of these other three you will need a supply of nursing bottles and standard collar-type nipples with disc seals, nipple covers, a sterilizer or a deep kettle, a bottle brush, a punch-type can opener (if you use ready-to-use liquid or concentrated liquid in cans), and a jar for storing nipple units after your baby is fed.

Roger Oge told school board members Friday.

"The report on special education, vocational and general accreditation from the on site visit will be one of the best reports around," he quoted the state department team as saying.

Oge told the board the accreditation team said the report on the Bay school district would be a "super report."

Oge also reported the accreditapublic's indulgence in passing the bond issue will help the school keep accreditation, according to a report by the visitors.

Oge also told the board, the accreditation team understood the problem of lack of space and realized that the needed space would be available when the building program is complete.

Also at the meeting Oge recommended several school administrators for positions in the 1988-89 school year.

Roger James, James Baldree, W.J. Cameron and Woody Alliston were unanimously approved as principals for the next school year.

A recommendation for Billy Rhodes, who has been serving as principal of Bay Senior High since the retirement of Frank Ladner, received two votes in favor and two opposing votes.

Board members Betty Diboll and Danny Carter voted in favor of the recommendation and Linda Penrose and Reginald Robinson voted nay.

Board member Charles Benvenutti was away from the meeting at a medical emergency when the vote was taken.

Later in the meeting when Benvenutti returned Oge requested the board to reconsider his recommendation for Rhodes as principal.

School board attorney Lucien Gex advised the board not to reconsider the motion.

Rhodes was later approved as an assistant principal for the next school year.

A letter signed by 22 faculty members at Bay Senior High and supporting Rhodes as principal was submitted to the school board.

Teachers attending the meeting also addressed the board in favor of

Pediatrician recommends regular check-ups even for healthy babies

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Immunization, good nutrition and regular checkups to prevent problems is the key to having a healthy baby, according to Dr. Bertrand Sy, pediatrician.

It is very important to have a baby immunized against diseases which are preventable, he said.

An important immunization is called DPT, which protects a child from diphtheria, tetanus, polio and whooping cough.

Good nutrition is also very important and assistance is available through the Women, Infants and Children program which in some cases can even provide formula for babies.

Regular doctor visits or "well-baby checkups" as Sy calls them, allows a doctor to follow the development of babies.

"Most of the time babies are not brought in on a regular schedule because they get sick and are check-ed whenever they are brought to the doctor's office," he said.

Development is charted by checking the weight, height and head size of the child.

If there is too little or too much growth, we can readily see this from the chart and counsel with the parents if needed, Sy said.

As a pediatrician, Sy has patients from birth to age 18. His office is in Hancock Square on US-90.

Helping your baby learn

For years now, scientists and teachers have been studying how babies learn and develop.

As they experiment more and more, they are amazed at how much babies seem to be able to understand even when they are newborn.

By learning the approximate age at which your child is ready for the next step in development you may be able to help more.

Or you may be able to enjoy your baby more because you understand better.

Please remember that your child is, after all, an individual. And this chapter deals, of necessity, in averages. In some areas your baby may be ready faster than those described here. In others, you may think your child a little reluctant. Don't try to rush things. Your baby will catch up. Just enjoy that interesting and different individual who has come to live with you.

Making your home baby-safe

Every year in the United States, millions of children require medical attention because of accidents. Some of them are hurt very severely, some fatally. And some of them are under one year of age. By following the suggestions listed below you might help you correct some potential hazards you may not have noticed and prevent an accident.

The baby's room

Make sure the baby's room is painted with a nontoxic paint. If the paint is old and you don't know what kind it is, repaint the room. It's safer. As infants get older, they'll taste anything.

If you borrow or buy a crib, check out these features:

- 1) The bars should be no more than 2 3/8" apart so the baby's head can't get stuck between.
  - 2) The railing should be at least 26" higher than the lowest level of the mattress support so your growing baby won't climb over easily.
  - 3) The mattress should fit snugly so the baby's head can't get stuck between mattress and crib.
  - 4) Smooth surfaces, sturdy hardware, and a secure teething rail all the way around.
  - 5) Crib guards make it safer and softer for the baby. Never use pillows for this purpose.
- Be careful where the crib is placed, too. Keep it away from radiators and out of line from hot or cold air ducts.
- A baby can receive a burn from a radiator, and the forced air from ducts can dry out your baby's nose and throat to increase susceptibility to respiratory problems.
- If you have a changing table in the baby's room, it should be sturdy and have a safety strap. One of the first things a baby learns to do is roll over.
- And some very active babies seem to be able to do this almost as soon as you bring them home.
- Be sure the changing table has plenty of room to contain all the items you need when changing baby.
- Even with a safety strap, you never want to turn your back while changing your baby. If you use cloth diapers, watch out for open safety pins.

doubly sure your child can't get near those. Some of the common poisonous varieties include: castor bean seeds, dieffenbachia, caladium, some philodendron, elephant's ears, bulbs from hyacinth, narcissus and daffodils, rosary pea seeds, holly berries, Jerusalem cherries, mistletoe berries and poinsettia leaves.

Electrical cords can cause two kinds of hazards for the crawling baby. If they're frayed, and your baby bites them, electrocution could result. And be sure that the baby can't pull something over by grabbing a cord.

Electrical outlets can be made safer by using a plug device that prevents a child from inserting a potential conductor in the outlet.

Be very careful with irons. Even when they're not hot, they can injure a child who grabs the cord and pulls one down. An ironing board is high enough to give the iron plenty of momentum.

Christmas trees can be a very attractive danger to small children in so many ways. Don't ever leave a crawling baby alone in a room with a Christmas tree.

Stairs must be blocked from the adventurous spirit of the crawling infant. Use folding gates and make sure they are secure.

The kitchen, bathroom, and laundry room contain many dangerous chemicals. The baby should, if possible, be kept out of the bathroom unless you are in there. And the medicine chest should, of course, be made completely inaccessible.

Never leave your baby alone in the bath. Stay with your child until the bath is finished despite any interruptions. Let the phone ring.

If you are used to keeping dangerous chemicals like lye and bleach under the kitchen sink, arrange things so your crawling baby can't get at them. Locks are available that a quick and easy for you to open but too difficult for babies. If you or anyone else is in a rocking chair while your baby is crawling, be alert that little fingers do not get under the rocker.

When the weather is nice and you take your baby outside, be sure your child can't get near a wading pool, a fish pond, or a swimming pool unless you are very close by and watching.

Older children and pets

If you have other, older children, there are a number of things to watch, and watch out, for.

They should be alerted that the new baby will take up a lot of your time, but this does not mean you love them any less.

Brothers and sisters should be encouraged to help you with the baby as much as they can.

However, they may need constant reminders that the new baby is not a doll or a toy.

Pets can be a joy or a hazard to your new baby. Be sure to watch the pet's reaction to the infant.

If hostility is apparent, you may have to take steps to protect your baby.

When your baby can pull himself or herself up

Once your baby has learned to creep, the next step is to walk holding onto furniture.

Any heavy objects that can tip easily now become a danger.

Pan handles on the front of the stove are reachable, so are tablecloths.

Drawers that can be reached can probably be pulled out.

Sharp objects can never be left on chairs or low tables. Sharp corners on low tables may need to be padded.

Babies.....

more sophisticated toys with different and interesting shapes. It is encouraging to imitate the sounds your baby makes. Keep talking to your child and keep hugging and loving.

AT 44 WEEKS

What your baby can perceive

Can understand words (about a dozen). Waves bye-bye. Plays pat-a-cake. Holds arm out for sleeve or holds foot up for shoe and sock in dressing. Drops objects so that mother or other person will pick them up. Begins to put objects in and out of containers. Covers own face in peek-a-boo game. Drinks from cup.

What your baby can do

Pulls self to standing position. Pulls self to sitting position. Crawls. Is more conscious of the utility of index finger. Often will lift one foot when standing supported. Sitting—can lean over sideways.

How you can help

Play the games that your baby loves like pat-a-cake and peek-a-boo. When you are dressing your infant, show your appreciation when your baby tries to help. Now that you know what phrases your baby understands, try to add to them. Keep hugging and loving your baby.

ONE YEAR

What your baby can perceive

May understand meaning of "Where's your book? Where's your shoe?" Shows interest in pictures in books. Loves to hear nursery rhymes. If audience laughs will repeat action. May kiss on request.

What your baby can do

Rolls ball toward someone. Gives and takes toy in play. Walks with one hand held. Walks with hands and feet on ground. Sitting, can turn around to pick up objects. Says two or three words with meaning.

How you can help

Read to your baby. Show pictures. Help your child walk. Talk to your baby more and more. Talk at your child's level—try to build the baby's small vocabulary. Keep hugging and loving.

Health mothers raise chances for healthy babies

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

An important means of having a healthy baby is prenatal care.

A healthy mother means a healthy baby most of the time.

"My philosophy is that Mother Nature provided women with a good machine for baby production and basically if a woman takes care of herself, she has a good chance of having a healthy baby," according to Dr. Mike Gibney, an obstetrician with Coastal Family Health.

"The first thing I tell women when they find out they are expecting a baby is to quit smoking and drinking," he said.

There is a good deal of research which shows that smoking by the mother can cause problems in the pregnancy and delivery, he said.

Research has proven that smoking can cause intrauterine growth and cause the development of babies to be retarded and consequently babies have a higher risk of fetal distress in labor and are also at risk for still birth and premature delivery, Gibney continued.

Alcohol consumption by the mother can result in fetal alcohol syndrome, developmental problems, neurological problems, lower than normal IQs and developmental problems in the central nervous system, he said.

Drug addition or taking any drugs not authorized by an obstetrician can also cause problems for the baby which might experience developmental abnormalities and actual drug addiction at birth, Gibney said.

One of the doctor's tasks is to educate an expectant mother on what she can do to help insure her baby is a healthy baby and to provide care so if something is wrong it can be detected early and treated, he added.

Help is available

It would be a good idea to familiarize yourself with the various emergency services that are offered in your community.

Some mothers even drive to different hospitals and time how long it takes them so they know which can be reached fastest.

You'll probably want to keep handy near your phone the numbers of your fire department, police department, hospital poison control center, and ambulance service, as well as your doctor's.

If an emergency ever does arrive, the speed with which you can reach help can make a big difference.

When your baby begins to crawl

House plants are very popular, very decorative, and add natural moisture to the air in the house.

Some of them are also poisonous. And babies have adventurous eating habits.

Place all plants out of the reach of your baby and be aware that fallen berries or leaves may look enticing.

It would be wise to learn which of them are poisonous and make

State Department of Education accreditation visitors, Superintendent Roger Oge told school board members Friday.

"The report on special education, vocational and general accreditation from the on site visit will be one of the best reports around," he quoted the state department team as saying.

Oge told the board the accreditation team said the report on the Bay school district would be a "super report."

Oge also reported the accreditation team.

Major problems are basically related to lack of space and the public's indulgence in passing the bond issue will help the school keep accreditation, according to a report by the visitors.

Oge also told the board, the accreditation team understood the problem of lack of space and realized that the needed space would be available when the building program is complete.

Also at the meeting Oge recommended several school administrators for positions in the 1988-89 school year.

Roger James, James Baldree, W.J. Cameron and Woody Alliston were unanimously approved as principals for the next school year.

A recommendation for Billy Rhodes, who has been serving as principal of Bay Senior High since the retirement of Frank Ladner, received two votes in favor and two opposing votes.

Board members Betty Diboll and Danny Carter voted in favor of the recommendation and Linda Penrose and Reginald Robinson voted nay.

Board member Charles Benvenutti was away from the meeting at a medical emergency when the vote was taken.

Later in the meeting when Benvenutti returned Oge requested the board to reconsider his recommendation for Rhodes as principal.

School board attorney Lucien Gex advised the board not to reconsider the motion.

Rhodes was later approved as an assistant principal for the next school year.

A letter signed by 22 faculty members at Bay Senior High and supporting Rhodes as principal was submitted to the school board.

Teachers attending the meeting also addressed the board in favor of an assistant principal with three favorable votes and Penrose voting nay.

The board also approved a change in the school calendar which resulted in faculty, staff and students getting an extra day of Mardi Gras holidays.

An inclement weather day which was included in the schedule in the event schools were closed due to bad weather was removed from the schedule and listed as a holiday for Ash Wednesday, Feb. 17.

When It Comes To Babies, A Hospital Is A Hospital, Is A Hospital.

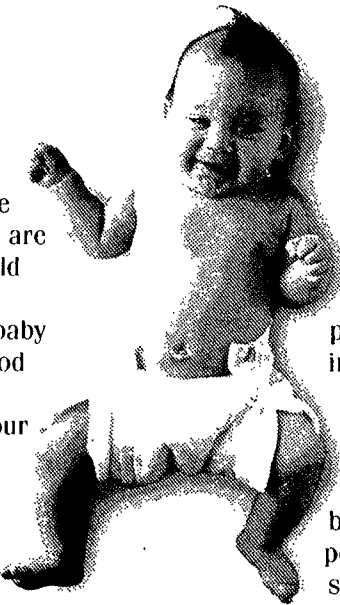

Wrong,
Wrong,
Wrong.

You have a choice about where your baby will be born. And there are compelling reasons why you should choose NorthShore.

At NorthShore, you and your baby will receive the very best care good medicine (and good people) can provide. And that, of course, is your most important consideration.

But there are others:

Saving money, for example. Our rates are competitive with any in the area. But they include extras that make them more than competitive. A private room in our beautiful new maternity center. A beeper to keep expectant parents in touch during the ninth month. Free examinations when your doctor isn't available. We'll even take good care of you after you leave the hospital. We'll send a professional housekeeper to do your cooking, cleaning and other chores for five days. And we'll send you and your spouse to a special restaurant for a night out as soon as you're ready to celebrate.

The choice of where your baby will be born is yours. And it's one of your most important. Because all hospitals aren't the same. And delivering babies is one of the things we do best.

So please call NorthShore now at 641-MDMD for the right, right, right answers.
